Summer program scheduled

Superintendent Sam Harbin has announced that the board of education of Sikeston R-6 School District is again providing a six week Title I Summer School program.

The school is designed for children in grades 1 through 5, who are having difficulty in reading, arithmetic or language. It will be totally financed with federal funds and will accommodate 200 students who have been selected and approved by both their teacher and principal.

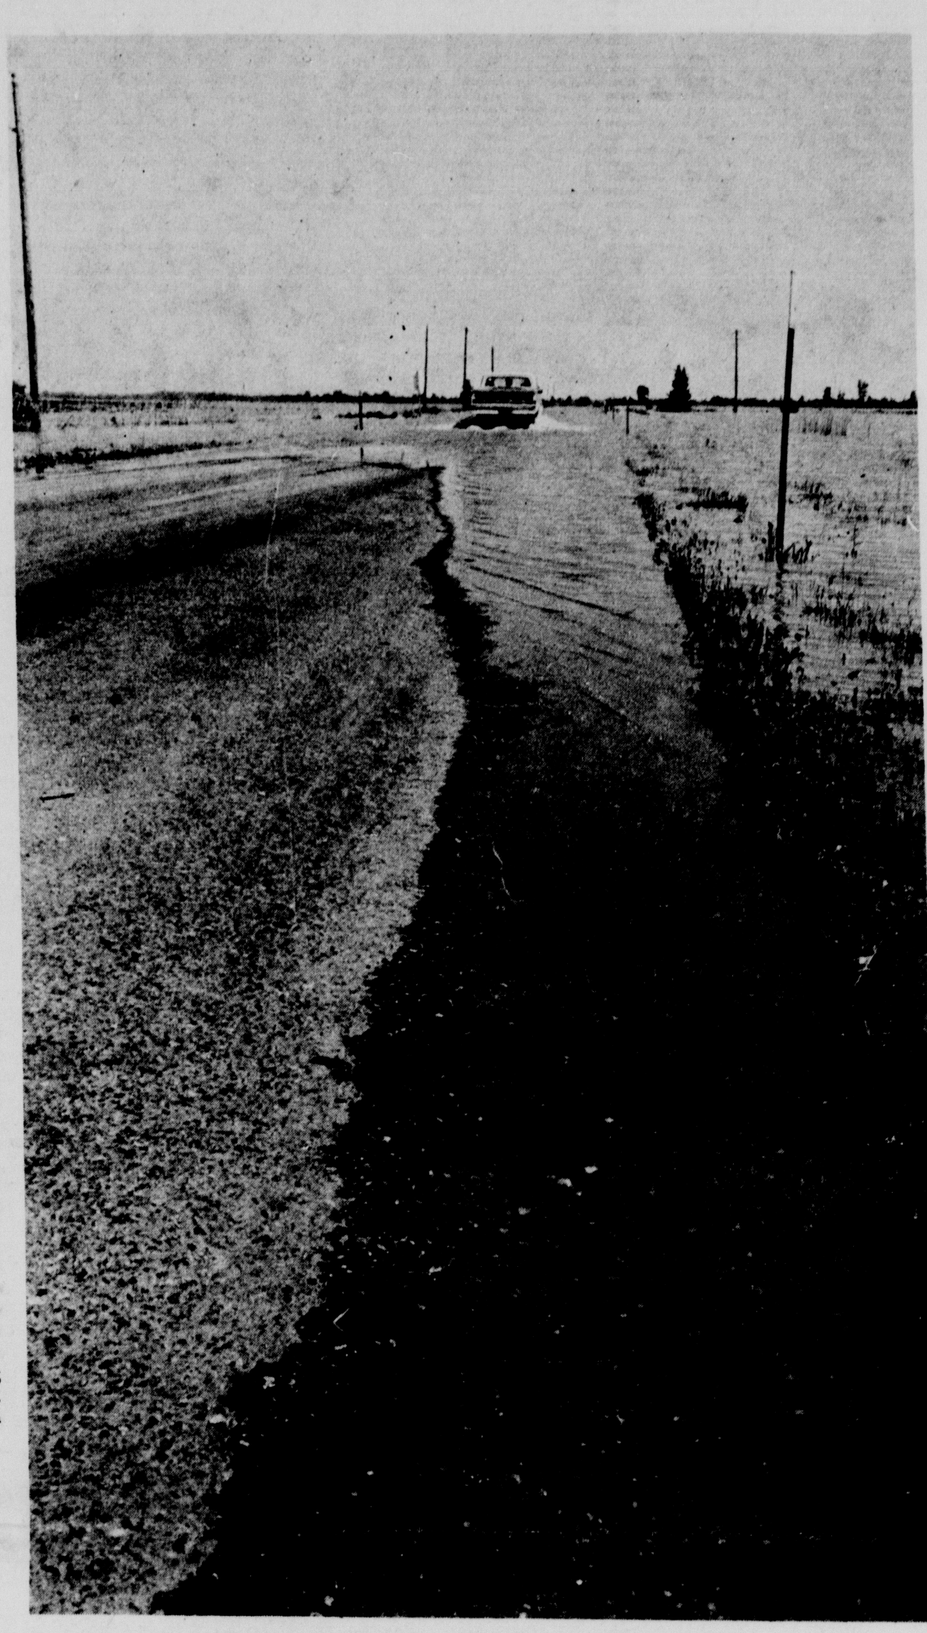

Harriet Jones will serve as director and the program will be staffed by 25 teachers.

Classes will be held from 9 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. at Southwest School, and will begin June 11 and last through July 21. Students will be transported by bus.

Two buses will run, Bus 19 and Bus 17. Routes and times of pick- up and departure of Bus 19 are as follow: Proffer's Bi- Rite Grocery, 7:40 a.m. and 2:50 p.m.; Potlatch, 7:50 a.m. and 2:40 p.m.; Southeast School, 8 a.m. and 2:30 p.m.; Smith Housing 8:10 a.m. and 2:20 p.m.; Nancy's Sweet Shop, 8:20 a.m. and 2:10 p.m.; North Housing, 8:30 a.m. and 2 p.m.; Duke's Grocery, 8:35 a.m. and 1:50 p.m.; Kingsway Plaza, 8:45 a.m. and 1:40 p.m.; and corner of School and Gladys Streets, 8:50 a.m. and 1:35 p.m.

The Route and times of pick- up and departure of Bus 17 are: Morehouse Colony, 7:45 a.m. and 2:30 p.m.; Morehouse School, 8 a.m. and 2:20 p.m.; Maple Oil, 8:30 a.m. and 1:50 p.m.; Sunset Housing, 8:40 a.m. and 1:45 p.m.; and Lincoln

Preslar shooting ruled justifiable

NEW MADRID — A coroner's jury returned a verdict of justifiable homicide Thursday afternoon at an inquest into the fatal shooting of Billy Joe Preslar, 38, of Portageville Thursday morning by Portageville Police Chief Joe Moore.

Witnesses included Moore, who testified voluntarily, police dispatcher Geoffrey Johnson and officer Hughey Crumley, who were the only persons known to have witnessed the shooting.

First to testify was Moore after he was advised of his legal rights and told he was not compelled to testify by Prosecuting Attorney Hal E. Hunter Jr. Moore said he understood his rights and stated, "I want to testify."

Moore, who has been police chief in Portageville for 18 years, said that as he was driving to the police station about 6:15 a.m., he saw Preslar coming out of French's Cafe about one- half block north of the police station. Moore said he got out of his car at the station and Preslar came down the street toward him.

As Preslar got nearer, Moore said he heard him say, "You s.o.b., I'm going to whip you." Continuing, Moore said, "I thought he was kidding." Moore charged that Preslar continued toward him and repeated several times he was going to whip him. When Preslar go near, Moore said he told him, "Bill, you are sick, let me take you to a doctor," and Preslar said, "You ain't no doctor."

When Preslar, who has been hospitalized on numerous occasions for mental illness, continued to say he was going to whip Moore, Moore said, "Let's talk this thing over." Preslar then said, "Pull off your glasses, I'm going to whip you." Again, Moore said he told Preslar he was sick and wanted to take him to a doctor.

Continuing, Moore said, "He hit me in the neck with his fist. I had unsnapped my pistol and, when I near about went down, as I came up, I shot him. I was scared of him and everybody else was scared of him," Moore said.

Preslar was described as 6 feet tall and weighed about 300 pounds. Moore said he was a strong man.

Moore further testified he had picked up Preslar on court orders many times when Preslar was to be institutionalized for treatment. He stated that he had never had an argument with Preslar or any previous trouble with him. Moore said Preslar had been known to have trouble with the police chief before him, and at one time had threatened to kill him.

Moore said he fired his gun at Preslar after Preslar hit him and was continuing to swing at him. The bullet struck Preslar under the left arm and he fell forward on his face.

"I didn't intend to kill him. I just wanted to stop him," Moore said.

Crash kills fireman

Leonard Overby, 54, of 534 Carroll suffered fatal injuries in a two- car traffic accident at 9:07 a.m. today in front of Wal-Mart Discount City on East Malone Avenue.

Overby was a volunteer fire captain and owner of Leonard's Shell Service Station on West Malone Avenue. Early reports indicated that Overby was enroute to a minor electrical fire at the office of Dr. H. B. Throgmorton, 801 N. Main Street, but late this morning police said they weren't sure where Overby was going. He was heading away from the scene of the fire at the time of accident.

He was pronounced dead at Missouri Delta Community Hospital at 10:05 a.m. Overby's chest was crushed against the steering wheel on impact, according to police.

Police said the accident occurred when a car driven by John Everett Masters, 70, of 214 Watson pulled out of Wal-Mart's parking lot in front of Overby's eastbound pickup truck. Masters was turning left onto the highway.

Police said there were no skid marks, indicating that Overby had no chance to use his brakes.

Masters was not injured. He was charged immediately after the accident with careless and imprudent driving. Police said further charges may be filed.

Overby was active in church, community and Masonic affairs. In addition to long service as a volunteer fireman, he had been a school bus driver for several years and was a member of First Baptist Church where he was a Sunday School department director and chairman of deacons. He also was a past master of Sikeston Lodge No. 310 AF & AM.

Flags at municipal buildings were lowered to half-mast after Overby's death. Fire Chief Larry Linnemeyer, who was attending a fire school in Dallas, Tex., left immediately for Sikeston upon hearing of the accident.

Overby had been a member of the fire department for 18 years.

He is survived by his wife, Dean and three children, Danny, Dennis and Ramona. The body is at Nunnelee Funeral Home where arrangements are incomplete.

Everett Dyson attacked, cut while working

Everett Ray Dyson, 16, of 410 W. Gladys St. told police he was attacked and cut about 9:30 p.m. while working behind the Burger Chef restaurant on South Main Street.

Dyson, an employe of the restaurant, told police he had gone out behind the building to empty trash cans when someone came at him from behind the building, shined a light in his face, pushed him down and cut him on the stomach and the arm. Police said he had small cuts on the stomach and left arm and urged him to get a tetanus shot.

Dyson said he couldn't see the person who attacked him. The attacker apparently fled on foot.

Car recovered

Police recovered a car Thursday night about three hours after it had been stolen from the Tucker Trucking Co. lot on St. John's Drive.

The car, owned by Charles Blumenburg, Virginia Pines Apts., was stolen about 5:15 p.m. Police recovered the car at 8 p.m. at Dudley Park on Applegate Street. Witnesses told police that two youths were seen leaving the car at the park.

Slaying of Zook ruled self defense

CHARLESTON — A six-member jury, called by Mississippi County Coroner Elgin McMikle Thursday, ruled Dennis Johnston, 26, acted in self- defense when he shot Dewey Wayne Zook, 23, also of East Prairie with a .22 caliber rifle May 21.

Zook, who was shot once in the forehead near the hairline, died two days later in Baptist Memorial Hospital in Memphis, Tenn.

The jury heard testimony from 10 witnesses questioned by Prosecuting Attorney W. Clifton Banta Jr. Testifying were Bryant Johnston, Carol Scott, Jim Owens, policeman Jim McAfee, Kevin Johnson, Debbie Kindle, Minna Lea Kindle, Louise Razor, Sherie Razor and Margaretta Jenkins.

Bryant Johnston, 28, of East Prairie, brother of Dennis Johnston, was the only eye witness to the shooting. According to his testimony, he and his brother saw Zook the first time on May 31 about 11 a.m. at Owen's Saveway Station in East Prairie and later in the afternoon in Big Oak State Park where they had gone fishing with Johnny Tyler and Billy Ray Nolen.

While the Johnstons were out in a boat, Tyler yelled for them to come in, saying there were two girls who wanted to talk to them. When it began to rain, they returned to the bank and, according to Johnston, Zook ran toward them with his fists raised.

"Dennis had a boat paddle in his hand and told Dewey to leave him alone, 'You're always wanting to jump on me,'" Johnson said. He said his brother swung the paddle at Zook and a blow glanced off his arm. Zook ran to his car and got a tire tool.

"I jumped in the car and started down the road toward them, blowing the horn so Dewey would move. I told Denny to jump on the hood so we could get away and Dewey threw the tire tool and hit the car as we drove off," Johnston said.

According to Johnston, he and his brother drove around in Dorena awhile, went back to pick up their boat and stopped at Bennett's Store near Dorena on their way back to town where they borrowed a .22 caliber rifle from Dennis Bennett, saying they might go shoot some snakes if they went fishing again.

Arriving back in East Prairie, Johnston said they asked Carol Scott to follow them to the home of Raymond Morehead so they could return his car. She would then give them a ride home.

"I was driving Carol's car and as we were pulling into the yard of my mother's home, we saw Dewey driving up. He stopped his car, had the door open and one foot on the ground when he raised a shotgun. I started backing up in the car and he yelled at us, 'You s.o.b.s, get out. I'm fixing to kill you both.' Denny told him to leave before someone got hurt and he answered, 'You're damn right someone's going to get hurt. I'm going to kill you both.'"

"As I was backing up, he started creeping his car toward us and Denny shot four or five times at him from the back seat of the car," he said. According to Johnson, Zook fell out of his car and the car ran over him and continued to move about halfway down the block. They called the police and then an ambulance.

Miss Carol Scott testified she saw Zook stop his car on Martin Street and that he was raising the gun when she ducked down in the seat. Miss Scott said she heard Denny asked Dewey to leave, heard the cursing and the shots fired, but did not see the actual shooting.

The next witness was Jim Owens who testified Zook came to his service station on North Washington Drive between 4 p.m. and 4:30 p.m. that day. He said Zook told him that Annette Hawkins had lost her purse with $300 in it, that she thought Denny Johnston had

Beatrice Dempster dies

Beatrice Lenore Dempster, 58, of 226 N. Kingshighway, wife of attorney Robert A. Dempster, died at 2 p.m. Thursday at Missouri Delta Community Hospital.

Born Nov. 26, 1914 in Longmont, Colo. she was the daughter of the late David W. Dobbins and Jessie Mayo Dobbins of Longmont. She attended University of Denver where she received a bachelor of arts degree and a master's degree in library science. Upon graduation, she accepted a position as assistant librarian in Albuquerque, N. M. In 1940, she accepted a position in Sikeston as librarian and continued to serve in that position until Oct. 1, 1942.

On Oct. 25, 1942, she married Robert A. Dempster, who was a Naval officer then on duty at U. S. Naval Training Station in Great Lakes, Ill. While Dempster served overseas in the Navy, Mrs. Dempster taught in the Longmont public schools. In 1945, she and Dempster returned to Sikeston where he resumed his law practice.

Mrs. Dempster has served many offices in both the Methodist Church and the Sikeston Civic Club. She was chairman of the district Women's Society of Christian Service of the United Methodist Church. She had been a member of the official board of Wesley United Methodist Church for the last five years and was chairman of the board of Sikeston Public Library. Mrs. Dempster had served on the library board for many years.

The body is at the home where friends may call until services at 2 p.m. Saturday in Wesley United Methodist Church with the Rev. Floyd Brower officiating, assisted by the Rev. Paul Walker, pastor of First Christian Church.

Burial will be in the Dempster family plot in City Cemetery.

Bill O'Guinn Funeral Home is in charge of arrangements.

GOLD PRICE SOARS

During the financial week of May 14-18 the price of gold soared to $128.50 an ounce in Paris and to $110 an ounce in London, up $65 in January. Some Europeans were reported to be saying, "Get rid of dollars at all cost." The reason: bad international publicity directed against the United States by the Watergate overplay.

Yet hear this from Business in Brief, issued bi-monthly by the Chase Manhattan Bank in New York:

"The U. S. economy is verging on an outright boom. While many analysts expect the pace to become more moderate in the near future, actual signs of a slackening growth rate have yet to appear.

"Total retail sales for the first three months of the year rose an amazing 16.5 per cent above the same months in 1972. Automobile sales continue to shatter all records.

"Business investment in new plants and equipment is growing steadily, and plans for future investment are being increased.

"Industrial production has been rising at an annual rate of over 8 per cent over the past six months -- close to twice the long term average."

It is ironic that in this time of unparalleled prosperity at home, the American dollar should be under such attack abroad.

NOTED AND PASSED ....

Leonid Brezhnev, the anti-capitalist Communist bureaucratic boss of the world's leading empire, is making out very well for himself in his world survey of what he hopes to be future Communist real estate. In 1972 he picked up a shiny new Cadillac as a gift from President Nixon; later he was given a zippy Citroen-Maserati by President Pompidou of France, and now he has just been given a snappy silver- grey Mercedes by Chancellor Brandt of Germany. At this rate, he'll have to build a bigger garage; no great problem, with so much slave labor available in the Soviet Union.

NEW YORK (AP) — Are you ready to give up?

Some say the world is going to hell. Others say it is already there but the arrival wasn't given proper notice.

In any case, the main thing wrong with the environment of man seems to be man himself. He is disillusioned with himself and the world he made. He dwells in an atmosphere of hate, fear, cynicism, and distrust.

If he had a motto it would be the old phrase: "All is lost."

Yet if one dispassionately analyzes man's plight, it would seem there is as much dramatic self-pity in it as real despair. Man has always been a breastbeater and a male Cassandra. He can always see the black cloud before he notices its silver lining.

All is lost? No, indeed. There are several signs and portents to indicate that the world is approaching hell at no more than its normal speed. What are these signs of hope — and perhaps even cheer?

Well, to name a few:

Every week still has a Friday as well as a Monday in it.

If you are the kind of guy who likes attractive widows, there are more of them around now than there were in 1900.

The pro football season will start in a few weeks.

There is no national election this year.

The whooping crane is whooping it up because it has again avoided extinction. Think how much smaller your world would be without a whooping crane in it to save.

In most cities you can still get a haircut and have enough change from a $5 bill to take a bus ride home.

You don't have to eat so many leftovers. At today's prices who can afford leftovers?

Since extremists in the women's liberaton movement have banned the wearing of brassieres, there has been more bounce to the ounce in girlwatching.

Men are getting stronger. A generation ago a man could hardly stagger home under the weight of $20 worth of groceries. Now he can easily lug them home under one arm.

Fie on gloom! And fie on doomsayers, too! The almost perfect world is getting almost more perfect in every way — if you just look on the bright side of things.

BOND EXPECTS
PLANE POOL
TO SAVE MONEY

JEFFERSO CITY — A state airplane pool operated by the administration of Gov. Christopher S. Bond is expected to save the state more than $20,000 a year the governor said.

Plans for the airplane pool were disclosed Thursday in The Globe- Democrat.

Bond wrote the Joint Legislative Commiteee on Fiscal Affairs Friday, seeking approval of his system to bill individual state agencies that use the planes.

The governor also asked the Fiscal Affairs Committee to approve the purchase of two small, twin - engine airplanes that will be placed in the aircraft pool for use by all state officials and agencies.

The pool already is being operated, according to the State Office of Administration.

Is Alger Hiss controversial?

Accuracy In Media's report says not according to NBC. On Dec. 13, 1972, the NBC radio station in New York City aired a 90- minute interview with Hiss, giving him an opportunity to proclaim his innocence without anyone bringing up facts that would contradict him or cause him any embarrassment.

NBC has informed AIM that it does not intend to offer any time for anyone to give the true facts about Alger Hiss, his espoinage activities and his conviction for perjury for denying that he engaged in such activities. NBC's explanation was that since these events occurred more than twenty years ago, the program was of "historical interest."

AIM filed a fairness doctrine complaint about this program on March 4, 1973. It pointed out that Mr. Hiss is currently appearing on radio and TV to promote his recently republished book, which is a whitewash of his past. Since there is strong evidence against Mr. Hiss, his claims of innocence are highly controversial.

Moreover, AIM informed the FCC that Herbert Philbrick, an expert on the Communist Party, had recently stated over WTTG, a Washington TV station, that the rehabilitation and vindication of Alger Hiss is an important objective of the Communist Party. Mr. Philbrick said that if the public can be convinced that Hiss was innocent, it will be easier to argue that penetration of the government by Communist agents in the past was just a myth. Mr. Philbrick pointed out that this will be useful to the Communists in their campaign to abolish the House Internal Security Committee, the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee and to eliminate security safeguards in the Federal Government.

It remains to be seen whether the FCC will be able to see the matter of the fairness doctrine as clearly as WTTG, or whether it will agree with NBC that there can be nothing important or controversial about something that happened twenty years ago.

WHEN MAN CEASES
TO EXPLORE ...

Mr. Willard F. Rockwell, Jr., chief executive officer of North American Rockwell Corporation, a firm deeply involved in space and commercial manufacturing, makes the strongest kind of case for continuing the U. S. program of space exploration. He observes that nearly 249 years elapsed from the first voyage of Columbus, in 1492, and Vitus Bering's discovery of Alaska in 1741. "In those 249 action-packed years," he comments, "every great land mass was uncovered and virtually every shore charted, and the foundation was laid for the development of the world as we know it today."

From Columbus' first voyage, through the ensuing centuries of exploration, skeptics could see no useful purpose -- financially or otherwise -- in the undertakings of the explorers. Yet they followed Columbus across the Atlantic and settled on the shores he discovered. They followed the trailblazers across the continent of North America just as they have followed the path of pioneers all through history and have benefited enormously from every step forward. And, so it is today with space exploration. Man has landed on the moon, and the skeptics say it is a waste of time and money -- but is it?

Mr. Rockwell points out that, even now, tangible benefits from the space program are visible. He said, "In the United States we estimate that our windfall of technolgoy from the space program is already returning four dollars of value for every dollar invested." When man ceases to explore, he will cease to live.

PHONY BUDGET
CUTBACKS

Though at moments overshadowed by other events, the Nixon Administration's campaign to portray Congress as a reckless spendthrift and the President as the implacable enemy of wasteful, inflationary spending continues unabated. The President and his surrogates, supplied by the White House with speeches, statistics and even anecdotal material, claim that his 268 billion dollar budget for fiscal 1974 would have been 17 billion dollars larger had not the President taken the initiative to curtail or eliminate many programs.

A close examination of the Administration's claims, however, discloses that most of the proposed savings are predicated more on an ideological bias against social welfare programs than on any dispassionate analysis of their worth and that, moreover, fully 8 billion of the alleged 17 billion dollars in savings is, to put it charitably, artificial.

Using documents furnished by the President's Office of Management and Budget, the staff of the Joint Economic Committee found that some 8 billion dollars in so-called savings are being achieved in two ways: first, by making unrealistic projections of the cost of certain programs and then reducing them by an amount that would have been spent anyway; and second, by appearing to order a slow-down in spending for projects that are being postponed in any case by unforeseen delays.

For example, the Administration estimated that it would "save" 1.2 billion dollars next fiscal year in farm support programs. But this estimate was predicted on the incorrect assumption that there would be a huge agricultural surplus, requiring large set-aside payments and price supports. As everyone knows, though, there is a world-wide shortage of grain that will permit American farmers to sell as much as they can grow. Thus, the staff analysis concluded, half of the 1.2 billion dollar reduction is based on conditions that do not exist.

Perhaps the most astonishing exercise in trickery is the claim that the defense budget has been trimmed by 2.7 billion dollars when in fact it has risen by 4.7 billion. The 2.7 billion represents the amount that each of the services would have received if the Administration had acceded to their full requests. The military services always ask for more than an Administration is expected to allot; this is the first one to advertise the difference as a budget reduction.

There are authentic savings on the order of 9 billions being proposed, of course — in the antipoverty program, water pollution control, manpower training, health services and so forth. Many reductions may be warranted, but the Economic Committee staff was unable to find any program evaluations to justify the cuts; instead, the OMB documents simply made blanket assertions.

Once upon a time the federal budget was considered to be the true and telling measure of what the government was all about. Perhaps it still is, but it is a dismal commentary that a staff of experts now is needed to explain to the citizen that the document is not exactly what it seems.

ENCOURAGING
NEW DIRECTION

At long last, it appears congressional action may be taken to relieve the nation's railroads of the financial burden of maintaining money-losing passenger trains -- trains that regulatory authorities have considered essential to public convenience and necessity. A proposal before Congress calls for creation of a National Railroad Passenger Corporation to assume the financial responsibility for operating passenger trains over a national network designated by the Secretary of Transportation.

The president of the Association of American Railroads, Mr. Thomas M. Goodfellow, has urged speedy adoption of the proposal -- with amendments to improve it. He has pointed out that the "restraint" apparent in railroad endorsement of the proposal, "stems from the fact that we believe there is need for ... changes which will materially improve the bill." One of the "more important" amendments sought by the industry would permit railroads, not joining the government corporation, to seek discontinuance of money - losing passenger trains not designed as part of the national system of pasenger train service. The law, as now proposed, would prohibit these railroads from eliminating any passenger service before 1975.

Inflationary cost increases have driven rail earnings down to the vanishing point. A law that forces a rail line to continue for five years the operation of a passenger service that could tip the scales on the side of insolvency would seem to defeat the very purpose of government action intended to life money- losing passenger trains off the backs of the railroads.

A large part of today's rail problems, and for that matter the problem of transportation generally, are due to failure of the regulatory process to keep abreast of transport change and progress. Whatever measures are taken to cast off the shackles of passenger train losses should recognize that time can be a make- or - break factor in the operation of a taxpaying, investor - owned private enterprise.

ASK A SILLY QUESTION

On one of his trips to Washington, Kosygin was shown a new computer in the Pentagon. To demonstrate the machine's ability to predict the future, someone asked, "What will the U. S. be like 50 years from now?"

The machine printed out a detailed reply almost instantly. Then Kosygin asked it, "What will the USSR be like 50 years from now?" and out came the answer. Kosygin stared at it curiously.

"What does it say?" he was asked.

"I don't know," Kosygin replied. "I can't read it. It's in Chinese.

CONGRESS' JOB:
PROTECT CITIZENS &
TREASURY

Leftish lawmakers and media spokesmen are up in arms over delays in spending of federal funds. It is not the excessive spending or the deficit spending that upsets them, spending which has ruined the dollar's once pre-eminent place among world currencies.

Congress' first job is to protect the citizens of the United States and to protect the Treasury from raids on the taxpayers' money. The chief reason Congress was given control of the purse strings in the first place was to protect the taxpayers from excessive spending by the Executive. The Founders learned from bitter experience and the entire history of government that a checkrein must be placed on spending to protect the people.

Before the right of elected representatives to limit taxation and spending was recognized, despotic rulers could tax and spend as they pleased, and did so. Treasuries were bankrupted periodically throughout history as rulers sought to "do good" for their people and glorify themselves through excessive spending on massive "public works," monuments, territorial expansion, etc.

Today's left- leaning opinion- molders and lawmakers have reversed the essential role of Congress, which is to protect the taxpayers and the Treasury. They want Congress to open the doors of the Treasury, disarm the nation and our people, and change our Republic into some Marxist monstrosity. Only the people's concern and orgnaized action can preserve our Republic. It is too late not to get started. HLH

Class Struggle--- U.S. Style Union Launches Stock Proxy War To Take Big Fighter Plane Firm's Management

WASHINGTON— With Soviet Communist party leader Leonid Brezhnev, spokesman pro tem for the late Karl Marx, about to fly into this feverish community, this is the time to report what passes for a capitalist- type class struggle. Especially since the story has been virtually unreported nationally.

It might intrigue Brezhnev to learn that leaders of some 12,000 aircraft workers in the huge McDonnell Douglas warplane complex near St. Louis (Mo.) plan to take over management of the installation. Peacefully. And by proxy. Real proxies. In fact, a new kind of proxy war. Collectively, the workers, mostly members of Red Smith's International Assn. of Machinists (AFL— CIO), own about five million shares of the company's stock.

It should intrigue Comrade Brezhnev to learn that this corporation which produces the F- 4 Phantom fighters, the world's best warplane, paid for a considerable amount of this stock for the workers. Under a 1969 union- company saving program, McDonnell Douglas puts up 50 cents for every dollar put into a central fund by an IAM- member employe. When each worker has enough to pay for a full share, the company automatically credits him or her with one.

Now the regional IAM District 837 leadership, directed by its president Gus Troia, has decided to demand a voice in management, open a drive to elect some officers of the corporation, and especially to help make policy on foreign trade. So president Troia and his colleagues decided to launch a proxy fight against incumbent corporate officers. Troia is a realist. He knows he can't capture the management.

But he can try. And in trying, he can whip up considerable visibility for the Machinists' policies--- which mostly condense to a demand that the company not permit the F- 4 to be made in Japan. This simplifies it. But more momentarily.

First, shortly the Machinists union will elect a single spokesman. He will be able, under the stratagem, to cast as many proxies as the District can whip up for him. The amount, of course, is not certain. But Troia plans to make the rounds of other McDonnell Douglas installations, especially in California.

Then with the proxy votes in hand, the spokesman will attend the company's next stockholders meeting come spring 1974, and cast them in a bloc.

Officials in the Machinists' national headquarters here, which has a sophisticated computer as an in- house weapon in this capitalist class struggle, claim they'll have most of the workers' securities--- or "about 15 per cent of all outstanding shares." Well, my broker tells me McDonnell Douglas has some 37 million shares "on the street." But the Machinists believe they can come to the board of directors election meeting with the largest single bloc of proxies.

The union is particularly incensed at what its leaders call a "vast" sale of 91 F- 4 fighters to Japan.

Two of the fighters are scheduled to be produced in the Missouri plant--- and 89 will be made in Japan. The union wants the work, the jobs and, of course, its share of the profits in increased wages and benefits. It also decries the fact that the Japanese aircraft workers, after the warplanes are built, will have developed the expertise, and the production combine will have the blueprints, for future competition with the U.S. in general and McDonnell Douglas in particular.

Considering the proportion of stock the employes can vote, there isn't much chance of a coup d'etat. And it is a unique "class war," since the workers do, with the help of the management, own some 15 per cent of the firm. But the Machinists' proxy campaign does mean that the union will have some voice--- and a loud one--- at stockholders' annual meetings from now on and will be listened to carefully. Ignoring this voice would create considerable "personnel problems," says one national union official.

Significant, too, is the national development of a phenomenon which one must add to previous socio-industrial moves. There was the four- day week. It died. There was, and perhaps still is, the job- enrichment intellectual fad.

And now there is the movement for a direct voice and participation in corporate management. This is not a fad. It is a reflection of the earliest stages of the British labor movement's drive for nationalization and the German unions' successful co-determination, co- management, co- decision making. In the U.S. it's all in its industrial infancy. But one regional official of the United Rubber Workers did demand that the General Tire Co. put a union official on its board of directors. This is co-determination. And United Auto Workers vice president Irving Bluestone, head of the union's General Motors bargaining division, is pushing for "worker participatin in decision making to achieve democracy at the workplace." To Bluestone, who will head the union's negotiations with GM, "human satisfaction at the workplace" is more important than "increasing productivity" or quality.

Today's rhetoric is tomorrow's realism. It isn't exactly Mr. Brezhnev's kind of revolution. But it is the beginning of a struggle which should intrigue him.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:
The Burundi Horror and U.S. Indifference

WASHINGTON— Far from the tumult of the American political campaign, in the African state of Burundi, the massacre of a quarter million people was reaching full horror a year ago.

From early May through August, the tall statuesque Tutsi nobility undertook the systematic slaughtering of their ethnic rivals, the Hutus. The Tutsis literally went crazy with revenge over the attempted Hutus coup. When ammunition ran short, the Tutsis used sledgehammers and even bulldozers to massacre the Hutus.

Some Hutus managed to flee the country but most were not so fortunate. Men, women and children were murdered at a rate of more than a thousand a day.

In Washington, meanwhile, both the White House and the State Department were aware of the enormity of the carnage, but made no public protest. Instead, official Washington chose "quiet diplomatic pressure" which failed utterly to alleviate the tragedy.

U.S. SAT BACK

Now, a year later, a special task force, funded by the prestigious Carnegie Endowment, has reconstructed the sad tale of U.S. inaction in the face of mass genocide. Project director Roger Morris, a former aide to Henry Kissinger on African affairs, describes the U.S. policy as "largely a record of indifference, inertia and irresponsibility."

The unpublished study singles out two State Department officials--- Assistant Secretary David Newsom and Central African Affairs Director Herman Cohen--- as the policymakers who "made the crucial decisions."

-- The policy makers "rejected out of hand" a proposal to place an embargo on American imports of Burundian coffee, even though some sanction of Burundain coffee could have been used as a strong bargaining tool. U.S. coffee purchases account for 80 per cent of Burundi's export earnings. "The coffee proposal never received a serious hearing," the report charges. The proposal, in fact, was not even discussed informally with Folgers Coffee, the main purchaser of Burundian coffee. The Nixon Administration, however, would "have enjoyed ready access" to Folgers "had it tried," says the report. For former top White House aide Bryce Harlow was then in charge of government affairs for Proctor and Gamble, the parent company of Folgers.

ADVISER IGNORED

-- The policymakers ignored their own legal adviser for African affairs, Keith Huffman, who advised stronger action. In mid- August, Huffman put his argument in writing in an internal memo. "While inaction in the face of a human rights crisis might be rationalized on the grounds of political expediency, such expedience cannot justify U.S. action...."

-- The policy makers "repeatedly misled Congress." As one example, the Carnegie study notes that Sen. Ted Kennedy, D- Mass., was assured in mid- June that "the civil strife had ended. "A week later, from Burundi, U.S. Charge d'Affaires Michael Hoyt described the killings as "selective genocide." And the killings continued unabated through August.

-- The policymakers, overly cynical, knew from the start their "quiet diplomacy" had "little chance of relieving the tragedy." Adds the report: "Though that failure soon became obvious, policymakers then stood by for nearly four months while the killing went on."

Rather than make the "touch choice" and involve itself, the United States persisted to try to involve the Organization of African Unity, various African heads of state and the United Nations. "None of the efforts to involve the Africans was successful... U.S. officials were not particularly surprised by this failure."

'ROUTINE' REACTION

Throughout the summer, U.S. reaction to the killings was described by the State Department officials themselves as "routine."

The one bright spot in the U.S. handling of the Burundi killings occurred in early May when Ambassador Thomas Melady broke through red tape and got $100,000 worth of emergency aid for the Hutu victims.

Melady also arranged a "low- key" letter of protest from the Papal Nuncio. But three weeks later, incredibly, Melady was reassigned to Uganda, another African troublespot. So, from June until September 1972, at the height of the killings, there was no U.S. ambassador in Burundi.

Footnote: We were unable to reach Assistant Secretary David Newsom for comment, but his subordinate, Herman Cohen, told us that the White House "was very much aware" of State Department policy toward Burundi. "We did what we thought was right," said Cohen. He added that he thought no policy--- short of military intervention--- could have stopped the killings.

Members make plans

Rotary to hold auction

The Sikeston Rotary Club auction has been scheduled June 23 at 10 a.m. at Midtowner Village Shopping Center, according to club members who met Friday at the El Capri Motel. Proceeds from the auction will sponsor the Bootheel Youth Fair and other Rotary Club projects.

Certificates and items donated by Sikeston merchants will be displayed in the retail establishments and identified by Rotary posters. Sikeston residents may contribute any white elephant items by contacting a club member or phoning 471- 8175 or 471- 4652 between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m.

A Rotary Club task force will pick up all donated items from residents and merchants.

Committee approves reorganization bill

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The joint House-Senate Conference Committee on Reorganization approved a bill Thursday night reorganizing the executive branch of state government into 13 new departments and the Office of Administration.

Reps. Harold Volkmer, D-Hannibal, and Robert Snyder, R-Kirkwood, said they will oppose it because the bill does not accomplish the job authorized by the voters in August.

The bill now goes back to the Senate and House floors.

The central point of dispute is the Senate's victory of advice and consent over department directors as well as several division heads below them. Snyder said advice and consent "is the rape of these departments as far as management is concerned."

Gov. Christopher S. Bond, who opposes several points in the bill, said he will take a "hard look" before making his decision to approve or veto the bill if it passes both houses.

A joint conference committee failed Thursday night to agree on tax relief for the elderly, another constitutional amendment approved by the voters last fall.

Another meeting was scheduled for this afternoon.

The hangup was how much rent would be included in a formula for figuring income tax rebates.

The Senate wants 15 per cent of the year's annual rent and the House members stuck to 25 per cent.

There also is a difference on the property tax formula, but conferees appeared close to an agreement on the House version.

Both versions would make the bill apply to persons 65 or over earning less than $7,500 a year. The original House bill had a $10,000 limit.

A household with an income of $7,000 and a property tax of $400 would get $80 knocked off the state income tax in the House version and $100 in the Senate version.

With an annual income of $7,000 and an annual rent total of $1,875, a household would receive a $94 income tax rebate under the House version and $100 under the Senate version.

The House formula provides more income tax credit than the Senate for renters with incomes under $5,000.

Estimates of the loss of income tax revenue to the state run from $14 million to $22 million a year, depending on the rent percentage used.

In other action Thursday, a bill setting up an overseas trade office to promote Missouri products received Senate approval but was returned to the House with an amendment allowing only one office to be established. The location has not been determined, but Brussels or Tokyo have been suggested. Such an office is expected to cost the state $48,000 a year.

Amended and returned to the House was a bill removing the $1 per day limit on wages of state prison inmates.

The House passed four Senate bills designed to bring Missouri laws into compliance with new federal regulations for public assistance. They go back to the Senate for approval of House amendments that don't make any major changes in the bills.

BLOOMFIELD — Preliminary hearings were held Thursday for Jack Barker and Clyde Brown, charged with felonious assault against W. B. Bowie Jr. of Greenbrier, Ark. and D. L. Bowie of Emola, Ark.

Barker was bound over to Circuit Court and his bond remains at $1,000. Charges were dismissed against Clyde Brown.

Barker and Brown were charged with the beating of the Bowie Brothers at the Drive- In Tavern near Dudley on May 7. Trial was set for April 14 for Clyde Brown, also charged with public disturbance at the tavern. Warrants were issued for the arrest of Lloyd Brown and Charles Griffin, charged with public disturbance the same evening, at the Drive- In Tavern.

Bond was forfeited and a warrant was issued for the arrest of Wayne Haynes, charged with molesting a minor.

A charge of common assault was dismissed and a new charge of felonious assault was entered against Paul Dees of Dexter. Dees was ordered to make bond in the amount of $1,000. Preliminary was set for June 14. Preliminary hearing was set for June 14 for Gerald Freed of Dexter, charged with forgery.

Trial was set for June 14 for Donald R. Hendley, charged with non- support.

Floyd G. England of Sikeston pleaded not guilty to a charge of driving while intoxicated. Trial was set for June 21. Willis Albert Layton was found guilty of a charge of littering at the Bloomfield lookout tower, April 13. Layton was fined $50 and given a 90- day jail sentence, suspended upon payment of fine and costs.

Trial was set for June 21 for Henry W. Richardson, who pleaded not guilty to a charge of driving while intoxicated and no operator's license.

Maurice Thompson entered a plea of not guilty to a charge of insufficient funds check and trial was set for June 21. Steven E. Cooper, entered a written plea of guilty, to a charge of possession of intoxicating beverages and was fined $50. Donnie G. Russell, charged with driving while intoxicated, was fined $100 and ordered to surrender his driver's license. Steven E. Cooper, charged with possession of intoxicating beverages by a minor, was fined $50.

Hurley Q. Guling, charged with common assault, was fined $15. Joe Daniel Hockett of Sikeston, charged with public intoxication, was fined $10.

John Louis Stanford, charged with possession of intoxicating beverages by a minor, entered a written plea of guilty and was fined $50.

Trial was set for June 14 for John R. Harris, who pleaded not guilty, to a charge of having an overweight truck.

Sixteen others paid fines for various charges:

Ned Warner Tanner Jr. of Sikeston, speeding, $16; Harold Gene Boner, entered a written plea of guilty to a charge of speeding and was fined $11; Regina Gail Bowling of Bloomfield, careless and imprudent driving, $15; Daniel Ray Jones of Dexter, illegal vehicle license, $10;

Lonnie Daughetry of Bernie, permitting an unauthorized person to drive, $5 Carroll R. Deal of Sikeston, speeding, $13; Hubert Lee Jones of Malden, careless and imprudent driving, $15. Marlin Lee Payne of Puxico, improper registration, $10; Dannie Ray Hodge of Puxico, speeding $14; Roscoe Meyers, overweight on truck, $25. David Harold Pinkley, speeding, $18;

Eugene Leon Glasted, entered a written plea of guilty to a charge of no motorcycle helmet and was fined $10; Dorothy E. Desgranges of Poplar Bluff, speeding, $16; James E. Cook, entered a written plea of guilty, to a charge of speeding and was fined $14.

Joseph A. Thomason, no motorcycle helmet, $10; Richard D. Dickens, faulty muffler, entered a written plea of guilty and was fined $10.

Senate approves nomination

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The nomination of Charles M' Kiefner as adjutant general has been approved by a Senate Gubernatorial Appointments Committee.

The action Thursday ended speculation about Kiefner's future as head of the state's National Guard. The Perryville lumberman, a lieutenant colonel, was appointed by Gov. Christopher S. Bond April 2.

His nomination was expected to be approved today by the Senate.

The committee took no action on the nomination of Lee R. Schuster of Gower, near St. Joseph, as a University of Missouri curator.

The Senate committee had delayed approval of Kiener when committee Chairman Sen. William J. Cason, D-Clinton, requested more time to look into the appointment.

When no opponents appeared last month to testify against Kiefner, several of his commanding officers rose and spoke in his behalf.

Cason persisted in his delay, saying he wanted to know more about why more than 40 officers who outranked Kiefner were passed over for the nomination.

Finally, the committee voted Thursday 5-1 to approve Kiefner. Cason voted no.

The committee must approve nominations before they can be finally approved by the Senate, which is usually a formality after committee action.

Bond has said he will not withdraw Schuster's nomination.

Committee members had objected to Schuster's appointment because of his views about liberal acceptance of federal grants and his support of expansion of the university's agricultural extension program.

Cason told the committee he had heard rumors that if the committee did not take action on Schuster, the matter might be contested in court.

No one suggested taking up the appointment.

The committee plans to meet one more time before the legislature adjourns next Friday night.

Counties will now receive funds direct

JEFFERSON CITY — All county governments in Missouri will now receive their County Aid Road Trust Funds directly from the State Treasurer. Gov. Christopher S. Bond, when signing the bill into law on June 6, gave full credit for the passage of the bill to the newly- formed Missouri Association of Counties.

The measure was passed unanimously by both the House of Representatives and the Senate. It was sponsored by Rep. William Crigler (D-Howard County), Rep. Larry Mead (R-Boone County) and Sen. Norman Merrill (D-Lewis County).

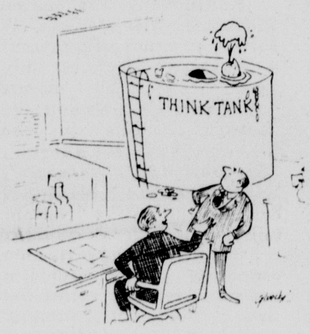

Gov. Bond said the Missouri Association of Counties' bill was a step in returning local government to the people and placing counties in a more responsive role.

In the past, Missouri counties have received these funds only after a lengthy process of submitting projects to the State Highway Department, obtaining approval of the project and approval of the work upon completion of the project. In many instances the funds were not paid to a county until sixty or ninety days after the project was completed. Other county funds were tied up until reimbursement was received from the state.

The County Aid Road Trust is derived form the counties' five per cent share of the state gasoline tax. Counties are permitted to use the money from the fund for the construction, reconstruction, maintenance and repairs on county roads, bridges and highways.

Agreement reached on police pay raises

KENNETT — An agreement on a pay raise for the Kennett Police Department was reached Wednesday night in a joint meeting of the council's police and finance committees, whose members met with a majority of the policemen in a three- hour meeting.

Dr. Maynard Sisler, chairman of the police committee, said the meeting resulted in budgeting a "substantial raise" for members of the police force, "which was more than our original estimate and closer to their request."

The exact amount was not disclosed, however, Dr. Sisler said the raises would not exceed the amount originally budgeted for that department.

The agreement, he noted, is subject to final approval of the council.

"If this is passed, as is believed, then everyone (on the force) will be working a little harder but happier," he said.

The terms include a partial raise and expense allowances.

The five Kennett policemen who had notified the council Tuesday night their plans to resign to find higher paying jobs if a salary increase was not forthcoming said Thursday that the resignations will be withdrawn, pending approval of the council in the next meeting.

They were John Ward, 8, Sikeston, cut heel on piece of metal; Troy Haney, 2, East Prairie, cut right elbow on soft drink bottle; Mark VanHoy, 3, St. Ann, cut forehead on table; Kevin Jordan, 2, Lilbourn, received cigaret burn to right eye; Danny Dunn, 20, Lilbourn, punctured right arm at work.

Jaycees to sponsor antique flea market

DEXTER— An antique flea market will be held June 16. For the event two blocks of downtown Stoddard Street will be closed to all traffic.

Anyone may bring any type of antique to sell, trade or put on display. Farm tools, glass, cars, wagons, musical instruments, arts and crafts or artifacts will also be accepted.

Each parking meter will constitute space for the antique items. There will be no charge for the space provided. Persons living outside Dexter and from area towns are also invited to participate.

An old time medicine show will provide entertainment.

There will also be many other displays in the downtown areas.

For information about the flea market, call Joe Dudley at 624- 3533 during the day and 624- 5743 at night.

The event is sponsored by the Dexter Jaycees in cooperation with the Centennial Committee, merchants, Chamber of Commerce and other organizations.

Area FHA members attend conference

Three Sikeston girls and one Bell City girl were official delegates last week to the state meeting of Future Homemakers of America on the University of Missouri campus in Columbia. The girls were delegates of Sikeston and Bell City high school FHA chapters and were among more than 1,000 delegates representing a state membership of 17,500 members.

The girls, Barbara Boshears, Jana Sims and Teresa Webb of Sikeston and Sheila Adams of Bell City, were accompanied by Mrs. Helen Calhoun, SHS home economics advisor, and Mrs. Helon Myrick, BCHS home economics teacher. Donna Kelley, Martha Pullen and Daronda Lewis of the Bell City chapter also attended the meeting as non-delegates.

Miss Boshears is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Boshears, 103 Selma, Miss Sims is the daughter of Mrs. Pat Sims, 301 Benton, and Miss Webb is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Webb, 1306 W. Murray Lane.

Miss Adams is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Adams of Bell City Route One.

The girls reported that the meeting was packed with workshops, discussion groups, outstanding speakers and fun time. The meeting theme was "FHA in a Moving World" and explored the effect of world events on FHA members.

During the leadership action labs, delegates explored areas ranging from preparing a speech to effective group relations. Special interest sessions were on such topics as religion, citizenship, population problems, working with handicapped, early marriages and women in today's society.

The girls also pointed out that one of the best experiences of the meeting was the opportunity to make new friends from across the state.

Miss Reed listed in high school Who's Who

DEXTER — Terrie Jean Reed, a senior at Dexter High School, was recently notified that she is to be featured in the seventh annual edition of Who's Who Among American High School Students, 1972-73, the largest student award publication in the nation.

Students from over 18,000 public, private and parochial high schools throughout the country are recognized for their leadership in academics, athletics, activities or community service in the book.

Miss Reed is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wafe B. Reed of Dexter Route Three. She is active in church choir and the school art club and was president of 4-H Club, art chairman of Future Homemakers of America and vice president of Future Business Leaders of America.

He has also won state 4-H honors and was a district winner in an art poster contest. She is a district representative in her 4-H Club at Dexter High School and has won the 1973 school award.

In addition to having her biography published in the book, Miss Reed will also compete for one of ten $1,000 scholarship awards funded by the publishers and will be invited to participate in the firm's annual survey of high achievers late in the academic year.

Miss Reed plans to attend Arkansas State University in Jonesboro, Ark., upon graduation.

SeMo State summer registration Monday

CAPE GIRARDEAU — With a revised format which benefits the students, the summer session at Southeast Missouri State University will begin with registration Monday. Classes will start the following day.

In recent years the university has operated an eight- week summer session during which students could earn up to nine hours of credit. This summer the term has been expanded to nine weeks, and two so- called "short sessions" of four- and- one- half weeks have been established within the nine- week period.

A student may enroll for up to 12 hours of credit during the nine- week regular session, or up to six hours of credit during either of the short sessions.

The first short session will run through July 12 and the second will be from July 13- Aug. 10. Aug. 10 is also the closing date of the regular term and summer commencement exercises are scheduled on Aug. 11.

By enabling students to earn three more hours during the summer than previously, the university has made it possible for a graduate student to complete a master's degree in three summers instead of four and for an undergraduate to earn a bachelor's degree in three academic years and two summers.

Another advantage is that a student may earn as many as six hours of credit in just four and one- half weeks, leaving plenty of time for him to do something else during the remainder of the summer season.

Lyman Evnas, director of admissions at Southeast Missouri State, said there is still time for prospective students to submit the necessary papers and admission forms in order to enter the university this summer.

This may be done right up to the day of registration, Evans said, but he emphasized it is best for all concerned if students new to the university begin their preparations for entrance earlier.

Evans also noted that former Southeast Missouri State students who were not enrolled during the spring semester must complete new admission forms.

In general, classes during one of the university's short sessions will meet twice as many hours a week as do those which stretch out for the full term. For example, a three- semester- hour course for the full term will meet five hours a week. The same three- hour- course duringa short session would meet 10 hours a week.

All classes are scheduled in air- conditioned buildings except for a few which require the use of special equipment or facilities in quarters which are not air-conditioned. In addition, students living on campus are housed in air- conditioned residence halls.

Besides the full schedule of both graduate and undergraduate classes to be offered this summer at the university, the term is dotted with special workshops in various disciplines.

Disciplines in which workshops have been scheduled are art, business education, earth science, library science, education, physics, English, law enforcement, physical education, social studies and speech. The workshops consist of intensified study, usually over a one or two-week period.

One workshop, Cataloging of Non- Print Materials, began Monday and ended Thursday. Others set to get under way during the next two weeks are Primitive Pottery, June 13-15 and 18-19; Problems in Business Education: Business Machines, June 18- June 29; Rocks and Minerals, June 11-15; Landforms, June 18-22; Organization of Non-Book Material, June 11-15; Problems in Education: Physical Science Science for Elementary Teachers, June 11- July 12; School Public Relations, June 18-22; Approaches to Teaching Writing, June 18-29; and Introduction to Forensic Drug Analysis, June 18-20.

A list of other workshops and their dates scheduled during the summer months may be obtained by writing Dr. A. R. Meyer, dean of instruction and director of the summer session at Southeast Missouri State.

A number of special lectures have been arranged for the summer term to complement the formal classroom instruction which the students receive.

The first will be delivered on June 19 by Dr. R. L. Johns, a professor at the University of Florida and director of the National Educational Finance Project.

He will be followed by Dr. Charles D'Augustine, a professor at Ohio University, on June 27; Dr. James Mecklenburger, director of research for the National School Board Association, on July 2; and Dr. Frank B. Womer, a professor at the University of Michigan, on July 20.

Additionally, Mrs. Warren E. Hearnes, wife of Missouri's former governor, will present a series of lectures July 16-20. She will discuss "Missouri's Executive Mansion", "Life in the Executive Mansion", "Women in Missouri", "Women in Missouri Politics", and "The Heritage of Missouri."

As in past years, the university has scheduled a weekly free film series for the entertainment of summer school students. The first film will be June 21 and others will be shown each Thursday evening through Aug. 2.

The university's Olympic-size swimming pool will also be open free to summer students daily (except Fridays), beginning Tuesday. Monday through Thursday hours will be 7-9 p.m. while Saturday and Sunday hours will be 2-5 p.m. Friday evenings from 7 to 9 have been reserved for faculty members and their immediate families.

Ann Landers

Overweight wife may mean divorce

Dear Ann Landers: Last Valentine's Day I came very close to asking my wife for a divorce. Why? Because she has been grossly overweight for the past eight years and I am sick of it. She goes for every diet that comes along, takes pills and insists she is "trying." She is "trying" all right--- everything and anything but cutting down on her eating. She has something in her mouth all day long.

We are both in our middle 30s, although she looks older. I still have all may hair and can get into my wedding trousers, in case you are wondering. Although I'm no Burt Reynolds I keep getting "come-hither" looks from some very cute chicks in the office. To my wife's credit, we have good kids and she's a better-than-average cook. The house looks O.K. and I have no other complaints except her weight.

A woman who would rather give in to her taste-buds than please her husband lets the world know he is not very important to her. This hurts. Do I have a right or not? --- Leaving It Up To You

Dear Leaving: A right to what? Start kanoodlin' around with one of those cute chicks in the office? Sounds like this is what you're after.

I am not not making excuses for your wife, but plenty of husbands love their fat wives and plenty more cheat on thin ones, so don't delude yourself.

I hope, for her sake, that your wife will get some counseling and find out why she has to have something in her mouth all day long. It could be the beginning of a better life for both of you.

Dear Ann Landers: Recently someone asked what to do about a former neighbor who drinks, calls her on the phone, and talks and talks and talks. Well, I think I'm the neighbor who drinks, so please hear me out.

I know I make a pest of myself but sometimes I get so lonesome I can't stand it. But I do have my pride --- drunk or sober.

Your suggestion that "Former Neighbor" get an unlisted number is not practical. Celebrities may find it convenient to be incommunicado, but the average person wants to be reached. How much better to tell the drunk (when she is sober) exactly how you feel about the calls. I can almost guarantee that the embarrassment will be so great that even if she is thoroughly sloshed she will remember and there will be no more calls. Sign me -- Been There And Trying To Get Back

Dear B.T. And Trying: Not all drunks behave the same way. Some become totally uninhibited --- couldn't care less if they bother people. Others don't remember anything, and so on. But I'm sure your suggestion would work on some. (P.S. Hang in there, honey. Others have made it back and you can, too.)

Dear Ann Landers: You have stated repeatedly that you are against the legalization of marijuana. Why?

Alcohol is more damaging than pot --- and it's legal. This is ridiculous. Please clarify. --- Lincoln, Neb.

Dear Linc: (1). No one knows for sure how damaging pot is over the long haul. But it appears from the studies now emerging that pot is a lot more destructive than was originally thought. Many authorities are reversing their positions. (2). Booze is here to stay. Prohibition was a failure. We now have 9,000,000 alcoholics in the U.S. and I would not care to add another 6,000,000 pot heads who are spaced out on grass.

Drugs. How much is too much? Is pot O.K.? Is L.S.D. too much? If you're on dope or considering it, get Ann Landers new booklet, "Straight Dope on Drugs." For each booklet ordered send a dollar bill plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (16c postage) to Ann Landers, Box 3346, Chicago, Illinois 60654.

Child specialist tells plant dangers

By KATHERINE K. HILL
Area Child and Family Development Specialist

Summer and outdoor play go together. Danger lurks in the leaves and berries of some shrubs that may be growing in yards, gardens or parks. Small children naturally poke things in their mouths, even grown- ups are sometimes twig- chewers.

If your child eats a poisonous plant, get it to vomit and rush to the doctor or the emergency room of the nearest hospital. But how do you recognize a poisonous plant? If you don't recognize them, organize a shrub and plant identification study for your family.

Oleander— leaves, branches— extremely poisonous. Affects the heart, produces severe digestive upset and can cause death.

Lily- of- the- valley— leaves, flowers— irregular heartbeat and pulse, usually accompanied by digestive upset and mental confusion.

Iris— underground stems— severe, but not usually serious, digestive upset.

Bleeding heart (Duchman's britches)— foliage, roots— may be poisonous in large amounts. Has proved fatal to cattle.

Buttercups— all parts— irritant juices may severely injure the digestive system.

Rhubarb— leaf blade— fatal. Large amounts of raw or cooked leaves can cause convulsions, coma, followed rapidly by death.

Wild and cultivated cherries— twigs, foliage— fatal. Contains a compound that releases cyanide when eaten. Gasping, excitement and prostration are common symptoms that appear within minutes.

Black locust— bark, sprouts, foliage— children have suffered nausea, weakness and depression after chewing bark and seeds.

Mrs. Newton is the former Delores Blackburn, daughter of M. G. Blackburn, 116 School, and the late Evelyn Blackburn. Newton is the son of Mrs. Leona Newton, 837 Greer, and the late Joe Newton. He owns and operates Newton's Upholstery. Mrs. Newton is employed by Missouri Delta Community Hospital.

Deadline set for contest

KANSAS CITY — The final deadline for sending in applications to become a contestant in the Miss Missouri Teen-Ager Pageant is June 20. The pageant is open to all girls between the ages of 13 and 17 and will be held July 27-28 at Muehlebach Hotel in Kansas City.

Judging is based on scholastic achievements, civic contributions, poise, personality and appearance with no talent or swimsuit competition. The lucky young lady who is crowned Miss Missouri Teen-Ager will receive a scholarship to Massey Junior College and will be flown to Atlanta, Ga. for six days, all expenses paid to compete in the national finals.

The first runner-up will receive a $500 scholarship and the second runnerup a $250 scholarship, both to Massey. In addition, each girl will submit a 100-word essay on the pageant theme, "What's Right About America", and the essays will be judged by a separate panel of judges, and special trophies will be awarded to the top three winners.

The National Teen-Ager Pageant is the only one to hold a bondafide pageant in every state and the District of Columbia with one girl chosen to represent her respective state in the national finals. Educational, political and civic leaders all over the country cite this pageant for its recognition of today's youth.

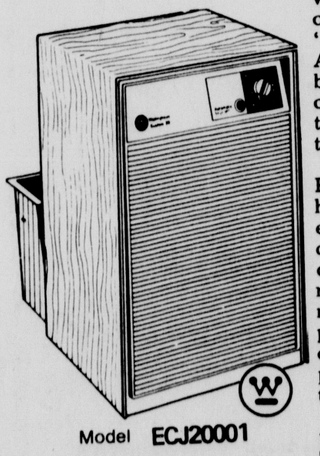

For an application, write to the Miss Missouri Teen-Ager Pageant, 126 Bunn Drive, Rockton, Ill., 61072.

Trinity VBS plans span whole summer

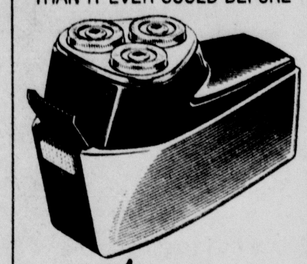

Members of Trinity Baptist Church, Highway 61 North, will engage in a week of Bible school, coupled with four "special satellite sessions" which will span the whole summer. Over 40 hours of special Bible study will be offered for those of all ages 3 and above.

The special week is July 16-20, with opportunities for children, ages 3-11, in the mornings and youth and adults in the evening.

The four "satellite sessions" are to be held on Mondays, June 11, June 25, July 30 and Aug. 6, from 9 to 11 a.m. for children 3-11 years old.

In making this announcement, George W. Cummins Jr., Trinity's pastor, stated, "There is a need, which grows from year to year, to expose both children and adults to concentrated efforts of Bible study. This Vacation Bible School effort, spanning as it does the whole summer is a continuing attempt to broaden Trinity's Bible teaching ministry and deepen biblical insight and truth for those participating."

Marchers hike for missions

Smiles were still brightening the faces of hikers for the United Pentecostal Church as they approached the two- mile point in their 20- mile march Saturday. From left, the young hikers are: Janet Griggs, Rhonda Adams, Cindy Adams and Donna Adams, all of Sikeston. The Sikeston church's effort was part of a statewide drive to collect funds for mission projects. Locally, pledges for the march amounted to almost $1,000. About 25 marchers, led by the Rev. Billie Butler, pastor, participated. Throughout the state, over $150,000 was collected.

Teachers and Assistants at the Presbyterian Church are: Sixth Grade: Mrs. Howard Johnson, Mrs. Don Wiley, Mrs. Peter Myers, Mrs. Ray Leonard; Seventh and Eighth Grades: Mrs. Newton Carroll and Mrs. Murray Sullivan.

Mrs. John Cowell is in charge of refreshments, assisted by Mrs. A. D. Martin, Mrs. Don Statler, Mrs. Art Hobbs and Mrs. Mary Townsend.

Persons in charge of directing recreation are: Mrs. Charles David Springs, Mrs. James Huff, Mrs. David Morris, Miss Susan MacLaughlin, Miss Cathy Hampton and Miss Leisa Wasson.

Nursery care for staff children will be provided at First Methodist under the direction of Mrs. Richard Edwards and Miss Rebecca Clark.

The POWER of FAITH

THE BIBLE

86. Rahab and the Spies

Joshua dispatched two spies to search out the country around Jericho. When the king of Jericho learned that these men had taken lodgings in the house of Rahab, the prostitute, he sent messengers to persuade her to give up the spies from Israel. Rahab convinced the king's messengers that the men had departed the city about dusk.

Rahab, however, "had brought them up to the roof of the house, and hid them with the stalks of flax." (Joshua 2:6)

When she came to them upon the roof, she said: "I know that the Lord hath given you the land, and that your terror is fallen upon us, and that all of the inhabitants of the land faint because of you." (Joshua 2:9) She then asked Joshua's men to spare her life and the lives of her immediate family as repayment for her kindness. The men agreed to this covenant provided Rahab did not speak of the episode and brought her family inside her house during the siege of Jericho.

After hiding for three days, the spies returned to the camp and reported all they had seen to Joshua.

DAVID POLING, D.D.

Women in Church Leadership Posts

By REV. DAVID POLING

A national survey of among members of the United Church of Christ reveals that many churchgoers are prepared to put women into important parish posts. This supports the trend in other denominations that see an increase in the number of ordained women pastors and the increasing number of women in seminary.

William J. McKinney, a doctoral candidate at Pennsylvania State University has announced the findings of a survey of 700 members of the United Church of Christ. The majority of those replying to the questionnaire (76 per cent) were women and they noted a preference for men as their ministers. Yet many indicated a high degree of acceptance of women in the pulpit. Persons under 30 and with higher educational background were most positive about women in pastoral leadership. Those over 60, from big city and suburb, preferred males in this role.

The reasons given for choosing men over women as senior pastors were as follows: tradition; men had greater ability to command respect in the community; ability to dedicate more time to their profession; more competence in pastoral counseling.

McKinney reports in "AD", the national journal of the United Church of Christ and the United Presbyterian Church, U.S.A.: "Three quarters of the respondents indicated that they would be pleased with whatever career decision their son and daughter might make."

This does not mean that women will soon be in pastoral leadership in every church and every town. But the trend is on with interesting variation:

Scripture: Exodus 20:3-6; Matthew 6:24-34; James 4:7-8

GOD IS SUPREME

The true Christian recognizes the supremacy of God and the integrity of Scripture. Yet when we are told that we should hold no other gods before us we tend to weaken.

Guideposts Magazine prepared a set of guidelines for citizens to use in determining their political choices. The editors considered the statement from Exodus to rate No. 1.

Other key words recommended for consideration included responsibility, truthfulness, integrity, conciliation, patience, purity, and courage.

Such advice need not be limited to politicians. These terms apply equally to our review of today's lesson.

Man was created to find his fulfillment in his complete devotion of God. His first move is to recognize the supremacy element. In doing this man must place the lesser gods in proper prespective.

What are these other gods that demand our devotion? They include the state, our physical comfort, possession of power, money and popularity.

Man must make major decisions each day as to which god he will emphasize. All such decisions must be made in light of God's sovereignty over man's being.

Despite the warning that we "shall not bow down" to any graven image, we often fail to follow God's law. Possibly the Scripture is warning us to avoid any attempt to control God by magical means.

God is a jealous one. If we claim Him as our own we must give Him our exclusive worship. Even the New Testament stresses this concept in saying "No one can serve two masters."

In recognizing God we view Him as our Creator. We read how He used His people, the Israelites, to demonstrate His power and authority. Man-made idols could never save God's people from slavery.

God prohibits the making of any physical object atempting to represent Him. Why should a person be tempted to worship some substitute item? In God's world there can be no No. 2.

Christ put these concepts in more everyday words when He reminded His followers about attempting to serve two masters.

"Serving" God is a twenty-four-hours a day obligation. A businessman must be Christian-like seven days a week, not merely on Sundays. A teenager must not give up his recognition of God to "worship" some campus leader.

Jesus offers us four reasons why we should not be too anxious about everyday activities.

(1) Life is more than eating, drinking, and wearing clothes. These items are needed, yet the real meaning of life is more than material possessions.

(2) We have ample evidence that God will take care of us, as He does for the birds and flowers. And certainly we rank higher than the birds and flowers.

(3) And as Jesus said, worry can't solve any problem. Worry never provides our needs; anxiety never cures our problems.

(4) God is aware of our needs and if we believe He will provide the proper solutions.

The entire concern is certainly one of emphasis and priority. Most persons have the knack of determining their priorities in other affairs, such as what to do first in their jobs. Or where to go first on a vacation trip.

There are many rivals to God in our daily lives. Jesus tells us about His temptations and we learn how He withstood them. He recognizes that such resistance requires supreme effort.

Christians are different from other people. But they are different only when they recognize that God is their supreme and their only leader. Such devotion to one master is difficult but Jesus assures us it is well worth the effort.

Trinity plans family picnic

Members and friends of Trinity Baptist Church will share in the annual family picnic Sunday. Activities will begin with Bible study and morning worship and continue through the noon meal, which will be served at 12:30 p.m., and an afternoon of fellowship and recreational activities for young and old.

Church News

Methodists list pastor stations

FAYETTE — The United Methodist Church's annual session of the Missouri East Conference May 31- June 3 on the campus of Central Methodist College created a new approach to providing pensions for its ministers, approved a weekly newspaper and adopted a budget of $1,876,977.

Meeting for the first time under the leadership of Bishop Robert E. Goodrich Jr., elected and assigned to Missouri last July, the conference also gave a majority vote to six of the eight constitutional amendments which had been transmitted to the East Conference by the General Conference of the denomination in April 1972.

The amendments pertained to elimination of male designations in the Constitution, more privileges to laity and technical matters.

The pension program allows all ministers to participate in a general church program whereas the ministers' own contributions and payments by churches are invested by the denomination's Board of Pensions. At age 65 these monies, plus accrued dividends are available to the clergyman.

The newspaper will replace a monthly publication and go to ministers and selected church officials throughout Missouri. It is edited in St. Louis.

Among ministerial appointments for the coming year announced Sunday by Bishop Goodrich were:

Poplar Bluff-Sikeston District

Bell City, Stephen Million; Bernie, David Rice; Bertrand, Robert Burke; Bloomfield- West Pleasant Valley, John Walker; Bridges-Marston, Michael Smith.

30-mile walk slated

A walkathon will be held Saturday, beginning at 7 a.m., at First Assembly of God Church, 306 S. Kingshighway. The theme of the walkathon is "We Walk So Missionaries Can Ride", and all proceeds will go to Speed the Light, an Assembly of God national youth organization, to purchase vehicles for the church's missionaries.

Approximately 45 people, including the pastor, the Rev. T. A. McDonough, will begin the 30- mile hike which is to end in Cape Girardeau.

Fifty families in the area and several businesses and businessmen from Sikeston, Oran, Essex, Bertrand, Benton, Cape Girardeau and Hunterville, will sponsor the walkers and have agreed to contribute a set amount for each mile walked.

The person who brings in the most money from the walkathon will be awarded honors by the national Assembly of God news publications and by Sikeston First Assembly's newsletter.

Morehouse-- Bryce Edwards entertained the members of the vocational agriculture class of the Morehouse High School and their guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F.B. Rauch, on the night of May 19.

Dr. J.A. Milem passed away at his home on Park avenue on the sixth following an illness of chronic throat trouble for the past several months. He had been confined to his home for the past two month's.

John Burks began work Tuesday for Sellards Meat Market.

Miss Virginia Matthews returned home last week from Washington, D.C., where she has been attending school.

Mr. and Mrs. F.D. Randall, who have made Sikeston their home since last September, left last Saturday for their home in Kansas City.

A Sikeston dance sextet which first won popular acclaim in a Lions Night Cub appearance and since that time in a half dozen appearances, will entertain before a Kennett audience Friday it was stated here today. The chorus girls coached by Miss Bradley of Poplar Bluff include Mary Emma Powell, Neva Mae Taylor, Mae Pepper, Genevieve Putnam, Marjorie Mow and Hazel Young. Miss Powell will do a solo dance tap speciality and Miss Virginia Baker will offer her version of several popular song numbers.

C.C. Sergeant, for the past two years associated with the Poplar Bluff High School bands and instrumental in building those organizations to their present state of perfection, visited Sikeston Tuesday and talked with civic leaders regarding the formation of such an organization here.

The weather moderated considerably Thursday, dropping nearly four degrees below the extreme point of 102 reached Wednesday for a new high June record.

The huge cooling plant recently installed by Sellards' Meat Market, Frisco, was placed in operation this week. A four- ton Frick cooling machine will readily cool 36,000 square feet of box square, which is more than adequate under present conditions.

Charleston-- Funeral services for Chambliss Keith Taylor, 29, were held today. A resident of Mississippi County for 10 years, he died Saturday at the home, Route 1, Bertrand.

Mr. and Mrs. R.M. Shirley entertained Saturday at their home with a party for 16 friends of their son, Bob, who celebrated his 10th birthday.

Babies born at the Delta Community Hospital on June 6 include a son to Mr. and Mrs. I.W. Miller of Dudley; Mr. and Mrs. William Cole, jr., Sikeston, a baby girl; and babies born yesterday include a baby girl to Mr. and Mrs. Fred Tope, jr., and a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. Charles O. Dahlberg both of Sikeston.

Ken Lanning of Rolla, shooting a sizzling 13 under par 95 for the 27 holes, won the fourth annual Missouri Delta Open Golf Tournament championship class here yesterday for the second consecutive year, thus adding another leg to the coveted Buckner- Ragsdale traveling trophy.

What's the law?

The case of the resurrected corpse

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

O'Reilly lived spryly with a lick of the heels and a sparkle in his eyes. And when the song on his lips finally stopped and he was lowered into his grave, there wasn't a dry eye or a full bottle to be found anywhere in the cemetery.

The somber consensus was that the last had been seen of the wryly O'Reilly. But then his widow insisted he had died as a consequence of his employment and, resisting her claim for a Workman's Compensation award, O'Reilly's erstwhile employer insisted that he be dug up again.

"If she's going to try to hold me responsible for his death," insisted the employer in court, "I've got a right to know why O'Reilly kicked the bucket. I want him examined thoroughly."

"Not for a barrel of four- leaf clovers," retorted the irate widow. "When a man dies, he's entitled to rest in peace and quiet. Besides, I'm not a strong woman. If I had to go through another wake when we buried O'Reilly again it would surely kill me."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you order O'Reilly's resurrection so that his employer could have him examined?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that an employer may not unbury an employe's body for the purpose of defending a Workman's Compensation claim. The law will not reach into the grave, concluded the judge, in search of the facts except in the rarest of cases and circumstances.

Director meets with County Court to discuss flood damage

BENTON — Charles R. Smith, of Memphis, Tenn., director of the Emergency Operative Planner Program for the federal government, met with the Scott County Court Thursday to discuss flood damage in Scott County.

Smith said none of the projects has been approved by the federal government in connection with damage to ditches, roads and bridges.

Presiding Judge Les Lankford said he doesn't think Scott County will receive as much money from the federal government as the court requested, but thinks maybe they will receive some.

Lankford said a letter is being mailed by the court to Hugh Sprauge of Jefferson City, administrative assistant to Gov. Christopher Bond, giving him estimated damages to public property in Scott County. Lankford said this does not include private damages. "This is just an estimate," said Lankford. "Later we will send a detailed statement."

The court's estimate is $195,000. This includes: Approaches to bridges, $75,00; damages to existing bridges, $50,000; replacing rock that has been washed off the road, $60,000; and culberts, $10,000.

Thomas R. Gilmore and Juvenile officer Fred Glover appeared before the court to discuss Gilmore's recent appointment by Circuit Court Judge Marshall Craig to serve as legal advisor to the Juvenile Court.

Sheriff John Dennis advised the court of a road in Vanduser where someone had pushed the dirt up in the road, prohibiting passage by traffic. The Court sent Reagan Harris of the Scott County Highway Department to look at the road.

Advance to purchase pickup

Advance — The City Council voted Tuesday to purchase a new pickup truck from Morley Implement Co. The new truck is to be used by the water and street department and will be purchased with revenue sharing funds.

Douglas Rowe of Advance met with the Council to discuss plans for a new tennis court. The proposal was tabled.

A proposed landfill was discussed and it was decided to discuss it further at the next regular meeting.

The council gave permission to Ruth Millington of the park board to proceed with plans for beautification of the city park.

Owens related the incident at Big Oak State Park as told to him by Zook and quoted Zook as saying, he had planned "to beat hell out of them." Zook reportedly said Denny never would have hit him with the boat paddle if he hadn't been drinking and his balance was off. Owens said Zook showed him his finger which appeared to be swollen and said Johnston had hit him on the hand with the boat paddle. He also claimed that Bryant Johnston tried to run over him with the car. According to Owens, Zook was very angry and had a shotgun between his legs, with the barrel out the window while at his station. "I told Dewey to go home and think about this overnight and he told me he was going to make one more run by their house and 'If they're there, I'm going to kill both of the s.o.b.s,'" Owens said.

East Prairie City policeman Jim McAfee testified that when he and Sgt. Lyle Scott arrived at the scene, Zook was lying on Maple Street face down about 11 feet from the intersection of South Martin Street. A shotgun was lying across his knees and, according to McAfee, it appeared that his left arm and left leg had been run over by a car. "Dennis Johnston told us he had shot him and gave us the gun," McAfee said.

The other witnesses called did not see the shooting and could only testify to events which followed the shooting.

Members of the Zook family became outraged when, as they put it, their side of the story was not brought out. Several members of the family berated the law enforcement officers of Mississippi County.

duty as night dispatcher and was outside the police station. He said he saw Preslar and heard him using bad language as he walked across the street toward Moore. Johnson said he was about 10 feet away from the men and heard Preslar say several times to Moore that he was "going to beat the hell out of him."

Johnson said he watched Preslar as he approached Moore and "he didn't look just right." He continued, "Joe tried to talk to Bill. I heard Joe say, "Bill, you are sick, let me take you to the doctor, and Bill said 'you ain't no doctor.' "

Johnson's account further corroborated Moore's testimony concerning Preslar's striking Moore and that Preslar continued to swing at Moore.

Johnson said when he saw Moore almost go down and Preslar was still going after Moore, he started toward the men to assist Moore. He heard the shot and saw Preslar fall toward Moore.

Crumley said he was inside the police station looking out a large front window and that he saw Preslar coming across the street toward the police station. However, he could not hear anything that was said between Preslar and Moore. He saw Preslar hit Moore and heard the gun fired.

Crumley testified he knew of no trouble between Preslar and Moore, nor did he know any reason why Preslar would hit Moore, or that Moore had any other reason to shoot Preslar except for the attack.

Preslar was viewed by the jury at Richards Funeral Home prior to hearing the testimony. The verdict was reached within 10 minutes of deliberation.

Jury members were Cloyce Poore, Jim Helms, Bill French, Bill Boyd, Leon Johnson and Jimmy W. Farrenburg.

'Leaving the competition behind'

Joan Weston, popular Midwest Pioneer distaff captain, exhibits the classic form of Roller Derby's "Golden Girl" in leaving the competition behind. The Pioneers, who draw crowds in St. Louis, Kansas City and Springfield, make their first Sikeston appearance in the high school fieldhouse at 7 p.m. June 26 against the rugged Red Devils.

Derby comes to Sikeston

The Pioneer and Red Devil Roller Derby teams will appear at the Sikeston High School Fieldhouse at 8 p.m. June 26 for a one- night performance.

Proceeds for the performance will be used by the Sikeston volunteer fire department to purchase additional equipment for the rescue unit.

Tickets may be purchased from members of the volunteer fire department or at the door the night of the performance. All seats will be general admission.

Inflation is no. 1 national problem

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House Thursday ruled out any major policy announcements on the economy during the weekend, but said, "the President will be taking actions as they are required."

Deputy press secretary Gerald L. Warren told reporters that President Nixon discussed the economy with his Cabinet during the morning but no decisions had been made on whether to strengthen the battle against rising prices.

But Warren said, "the President considers inflation as the No. 1 problem in the nation."

Nixon invited suggestions from Cabinet officers on how to deal with the problem of inflation, Warren said.

He called "obviously unwelcome" the report by the Labor Department that wholesale prices surged again in May, presaing future price increases as the consumer level.

Jamestown parents still wait for news of son

JAMESTOWN, Mo. (AP) — News reports are watched carefully by Mr. and Mrs. Carl Richardson of Jamestown, Mo., for any news about the more than 2,000 men still listed as missing in action in the Vietnam War.

One of the missing is their son who was shot down over Cambodia in May, 1970.

"We don't think there's much chance he'll be found alive, Richardson says. "Of course, we're still holding out that hope."

Richardson's main concern is that the missing men, his son included, seem to be slipping from the minds of American people, now that the war is over and the prisoners of war have returned. He is afraid people will lose interest and fail to pursue information about the MIAs, which was the case after the Korean War when several hundred MIAs were never accounted for.

"How extensive the search is by the international teams will be our personal cogncern," he said.

Richardson has a map with an "X" marking the spot where his son's helicopter was shot down. "The site is easy to find and they say the helicopter may still be there. If the fighting ever stops there (in Cambodia) the international team will be able to go in and find out something," he said.

The Richardsons have learned from other men in the helicopter who have returned that their son was last seen defending himself with his automatic pistol. Because of this, they are inclined to believe their son was killed.

Richardson, a school superintendent at nearby Prairie Home, Mo., was state co-ordinator for the Missouri League of Families for Prisoners of War and Missing in Action.

When the war ended and the prisoners came home, the metal bracelets that many people wore with prisoners' names engraved on them were removed. Richardson feels it is becoming too late to stir up much public interest in the missing men.

"Pressure from the public on Hanoi, and pressure from the United States government are the only things that can bring a full accounting from the Communists," he says. The ceasefire accord reached in Paris provided for such an accounting of the missing men by Hanoi, but Richardson, along with many other Americans, does not believe the list released a few months ago was near complete.

Richardson has strong feelings against granting amnesty to draft dodgers.

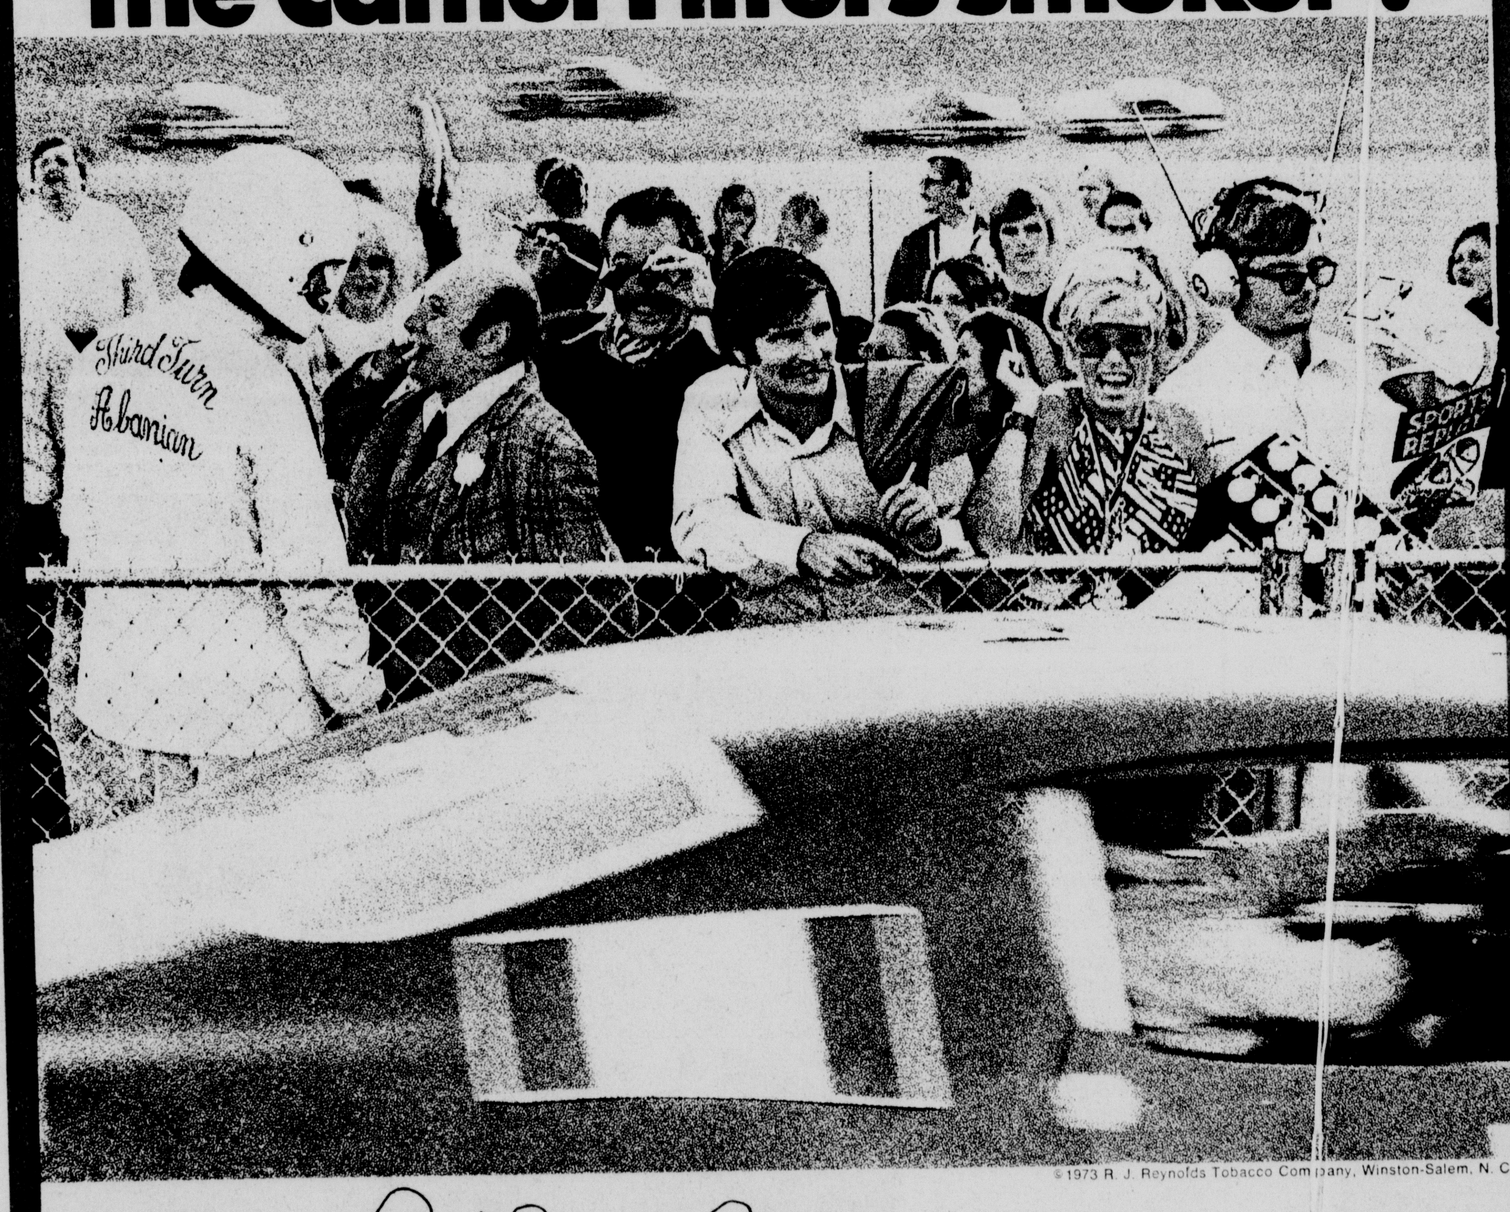

"Our son had opposition to the war, but he went anyway and served, and now he is lost in Cambodia. Draft-dodging is a preconceived violation of the law and it cannot be absolved by granting amnesty," he said.

"It's like refusing to obey any other law in our country. If you break the law, you must pay the price for your mistake. This is the method set up by our Constitution and is the law of the land."

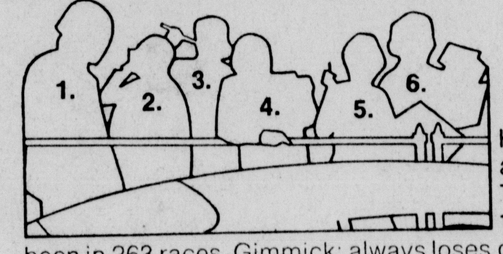

On the other hand, Richardson has some sympathy for deserters who broke and ran in battle. "I am more favorably inclined to help this person. Although each case is an individual one, there may be a good reason for his decision. At least his action is not as pre -conceived as the draft dodger's."

And as an afterthought, Richardson added: "After all, our son went to Vietnam. He may have been filling in for someone who is crying in Stockholm right now."

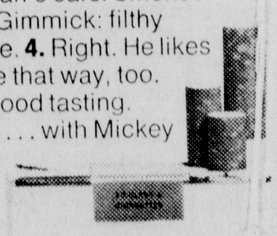

Can you spot the Camel Filters smoker?

Here at the Speedway everybody has a gimmick . . . almost everybody. Try picking the one who doesn't go along. 1. Nope. He's "Third Turn" Abanian. Has been in 263 races. Gimmick: always loses control on third turn where Bubbles Fickfern stands (see #5 below). He doesn't smoke. His car does. 2. No. Second-Hand Sam Slick, used car dealer. Gimmick: buys what's left of Abanian's cars. Smokes "preowned" cigars. 3. Hardly. He's Reggie J. Van Phynque II. Gimmick: filthy rich. Wears cashmere toupee. Smokes double-vented cigarette. 4. Right. He likes his racing without far-out fads or gimmicks. Wants his cigarette that way, too. Camel Filters. Honest, no-nonsense. Fine tobacco. Easy and good tasting. 5. Bubbles Fickfern, racing groupie. Gimmick: 18 stopwatches . . . with Mickey Mouse hands. Smokes Fellinis. 6. Fellini. Gimmick: never sees a race; too busy following other sports events on portable TV and radio.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Conservation Department says waters should continue to be clear and good this weekend, if no more rain occurs.

Temperatures in the state's streams and rivers are running about 70 degrees and channel cat, crappie, blue gill, and goggle-eye are running fair to good but bass are only fair.

Individual stream conditions:

Mississippi—Flood stage.

Missouri—Muddy and full, poor.

Salt—Half bank full, muddy.

Big River—Dingy and flush, poor.

Current—Clear to dingy; slightly normal; goggle-eye on black and white flies good in upper end; excellent lower.

Jr. wins prevail

Jr. Babe Ruth action saw Davis & Byrd down Home Materials 6- 3 and the Eagles hand Harts a 13- 6 defeat Thursday night.

The first three innings remained scoreless as both teams failed to bring anybody around. Davis & Byrd was first on the board when they broke through for three runs in the fourth. They gained an additional run before Home Materials made a score. Playing steady, ball, D&B picked up two more runs and while holding Home Materials came away with the win.. Greer pitched the win. Dockins, the losing pitcher, had the only extra base hit of the game with a double.

Harts could not move against the pitching of the Eagles' Cloud and has to suffer the loss. Starting the game with two runs, Harts looked to have an early advantage, but matters seemed dimmer as the Eagles picked up the pace and scored on Harts. Gaining the lead during the second, they managed to hold on to it. Hart threatened in the fourth, moving to within one of the lead but the Eagles still had the power at the plate and continued a winning score. Stokes pitched the loss.

Donkies star

BLOOMFIELD — Two donkey softball games are scheduled to be played at the Bloomfield High School Athletic Field on Friday night, June 8, at 8:00 p.m.

The games are sponsored by the Bloomfield Summer Baseball Association. The proceeds will go for the benefit of the local Little League, Babe Ruth and Connie Mack teams. The specific purpose is to purchase needed equipment.

In the second game, Con Metz and his Pony League boys will ride against Jerry Holland and the Connie Mack boys.

Tickets, if purchased in advance, will be $1.00 for adults and grades 7-12 and $.75 for students in grades K-6. At the gate, the prices will be $1.25 for adults and grades 7-12 and $1.00 for elementary students.

In case of rain, the games will be re- scheduled at a later date.

Fast play

Roppert pitched a 4- 0 shutout over Bank of Sikeston for Eby's Distribution and the National Guard downed Budweiser 11-5 in Thursday night's Sikeston Fast Pitch League.

Lambert had to take the loss for Bank of Sikeston as his team failed to supply the hitting power against the tough Roppert.

Close wins

Musial Little League action was tight Thursday night as Kingsway and Harts squeaked by for wins. Kingsway turned back Rank of Sikeston 12-10 while Potlatch dropped a 18-16 game to Harts.

The game was evenly matched as both teams struggled to gain a hold on the lead. Kingsway picked up the edge, but was continually being threatened by Bank of Sikeston. Kingsway managed to keep a step ahead of the Bank and was able to come away with the win. Perry, for Bank of Sikeston, had two doubles. Williams helped lead Kingsway to the win with a double and homer.

The lead see- sawed back and forth between the two teams. Tied in the first, Harts shook loose and went ahead by two, but could not hold on for long as Potlatch came back and tied the game once again. Despite Harts efforts, Potlatch forged ahead to capture the lead. The final inning produced the results as Harts came on strong and held Potlatch to take the win. Potlatch's only extra base hit of the game was a double from Bell. Scott, the winning pitcher, had a double to this credit along with Dockins, Fraser and Cox. Hurley proved to be the star of the game, being four for four at bat. He had three doubles and one triple for his efforts. branson had the loss.

Tourney opener

The Vanduser Invitational Softball Tourney opened Thursday night with a bang as homeruns flourished. Vanduser defeated the Cape Jets 5-1 and Sikeston fell to Kelso 6-5.

Mays had a two runs homer for Vanduser early in the game which carried them to the win. Holding on to that edge and picking up three aditional runs, Vanduser proved to be a little too tough for the Jets. Gilland was on the mound for Vanduser.

Sikeston played strong ball during the first four innings, taking a 5-0 edge. Dale Sexton hit a two run homer which started the action. Another homerun added to it, gave Sikeston the lead, but it was not long until Kelso got into the action. Schwartz hit a three run homer in the bottom of the fourth to start the attack on Sikeston. Another round tripper brought Kelso to within one and then to the win. Relief pitcher Tommy Russell had the win and Bob Glare suffered the loss.

Cards stopped

ST. LOUIS (AP)— "I kind of knew what he was going to throw me," said Ivan Murrell, a San Diego Padres sub. "He's a low ball, sinker pitcher; I'm a low ball hitter."

The hunch of the 28-year- old Padres utility man paid off Thursday night as San Diego rallied to nip the surging St. Louis Cardinals 4-3.

But apparently even more certain of Murrell's ninth-inning heroics, a lead- off homer against reliever Wane Granger, was Nick Colosi, the game's first base umpire.

"Believe it or not when they brought Granger in the first base umpire looked at me and ssid, 'you're about due for a home run' " said Murrell, who was playing first base in place of ailing Nate Colbert.

"Granger had retired about six in a row at the time, and I told him I had pretty good luck against this guy," Murrell added.

"He said, 'well, you're about due for a home run.' I said, 'No, I'm not looking for a home run.' "

His bouncing single up the middle struck teammate Dave Roberts, however, and canceled a budding San Diego Rally in the second.

In the sixth, as the Padres rallied to tie, a sharp double scored Fred Kendall to make it 3- 2 and brought on Granger in place of Cards starter Reggie Cleveland.

Granger, 1- 2, was victimized by a bouncing Rich Morales single that produced the tie, then retired at actual count seven in a row before facing Murrell.

Losses taken

In National Little League play Thursday night, A & B scored a 5-3 win over Kiwanis and Pizza Inn hit Lewis off the field with a 16-6 win.

A & B, behind consistent pitching and fielding, held off the Kiwanis in a tight match. The early edge went to A & B which they kept in their grasp throughout the game. Kiwanis came around to give A & B a little trouble, but could not rally and had to take the loss. Brashear was on the mound for A & B. Lee hit a double for A & B.

It was a hitter's field day durg the second game. Pizza blasted Lewis in all departments. Lewis picked up the lead and Pizza Inn had to struggle to make a comeback. Finally coming around in the third, Pizza Inn got their bats swinging and brought six runs across. But it was not over yet. Lewis battled back and came within one run of Pizza Inn, but Pizza continued their hot hitting and knocked nine big runs in and the game was all Pizza Inn's. Northcut, Beadean and Laseter hit doubles, Walls had a triple and Deal hit a double and a home run. All were Pizza Inn's extra base hits.

Weekend golfing

If the good weather that this area has enjoyed for the last couple of days holds out, golf enthusiasts have a big weekend to look forward to.

The links will be crowded around this area with no less than four tournaments scheduled throughout the state and Arkansas and Kentucky.

The Cape Public Course Open tournament will be played at Cape Girardeau Saturday and Sunday. It will be a 36 hole affair.

A 36 hole Mixed Pairs tournament will be held at RollingHills Country Club in Paducah, Ky. Saturday and Sunday.

Sherwood Country Club in St. Louis will hold a 36 hole mixed pair scramble Saturday and Sunday.

Oak Meadow Country Club in Rolla will host a 36 hole 4-ball tournament on Saturday and Sunday.

The St. Andrews GC Open will be held in St. Charles, Mo. Saturday and Sunday.

MOBILE HOMES & TRAILERS

With our new campers you'll never have to bend over a hot stove again.

In our new Starcraft campers, you may still have to cook, but at least you don't have to stoop to use the range. All the kitchens are built to be used at a back-saving working height, nearly 7" above most others. There's even one model with a kitchen console that swings out to let you cook outdoors if you want. That's Starcraftsmanship.

Today in U.S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today's highlight in history: On this date in the year 632, the prophet Mohammed died.

On this date:

In 1861, Tennessee seceded from the Union.

In 1953, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled that restaurants in the District of Columbia could not refuse to serve Negroes.

In 1965, U.S. troops in Vietnam were authorized to engage in offensive operations.

Turtle round-up

Learning crafts

Daycamp gives insight into Scouting

With a theme of Look to the Rainbow, 144 Girl Scouts and 26 adults are earning badges and learning new craft skills at Girl Scout Day Camp this week at the Bill Lewis farm, 16 miles west of Sikeston at Avert.

Day camp for the Sikeston, Matthews and Morehouse neighborhoods started Monday and ends today. Scouts have been working on baskets and weaving, making belts, hiking, learning and teaching games, making terraniums and gathering wildflowers. They also held a turtle race Thursday.

The girls have chosen names for their groups, which include colors in the rainbow. Unit names range from Bluejays, to Yellow Submarines, Jolly Green Giants, Purple Pickles, Rambling Blues, Orange Brigade, Pink Panthers, Aqua Meadow, Rambling Roses, and Pixies.

Each day a bag of gold is hidden on the camp ground. The troop that finds the bag, receives a chocolate gold coin treat at the end of the day. An award is also made each day for the unit with the cleanest campsite that day.

The day starts at 9 a.m. with a flag ceremony and ends at 3 p.m. with a closing ceremony. Today was designated as crazy hair day. Awards and badges were given out to the campers.

Five year camper awards were given to Kim Burrows, Tory Robertson, Laurie Deane and Michele Manning of Sikeston and Teresa Hawes of Matthews.

The scouts have had various experiences while at camp which ranged from Monday's bad rainstorm at the end of camp to being chased by cattle while on a hike. Cadette Scouts, spent the night at the campsite Thursday night.

To help all scouts remember their experiences at this year's day camp, the Cadette unit called Jolly Green Giants, put together a small newspaper called The Rainbow Special, which was given to all girls at the end of camp.

The camp site was perfect for the primitive desires of the girls. It is located in a hilly and wooded area, with a stream running right through camp, which the girl's found was excellent for cooling off.

ECONOMICAL ANGLER

MANKAT, Minn. (AP) — National fresh-water fishing champion Dave Jadwin's first fishing tackle consisted of a radio antenna from a wrecked car and safety pins as hooks.

Bond set at $2500 for Lucille Wilson

CHARLESTON — Magistrate T.J. Brown Jr. Thursday appointed an attorney to represent Mrs. Lucille Wilson of rural Charleston on a felony charge of assault with intent to kill.

Bond for Mrs. Wilson, accused of assaulting her common- law husband Andrew Phillips with an ax on June 1, was set at $2,500, and the case was continued.

Dean Williams, Billy Poe and Richard Easley of East Prairie each entered pleas of guilty to two counts of maliciously destroying and injuring personal property. Sentencing for the three was deferred to June 14. The three pleaded guilty to breaking a window in a car owned by Oscar Stein on May 30 and, on the same day, throwing rocks through the windshield and right window of a truck owned by the Mississippi County Drainage Co.

Ruthie B. Butler of Waterloo, W. Va., entered a plea of not guilty to a charge of having improper license and trial was set for June 14. She was released on her own recognizance.

Judge Brown scheduled June 14 as trial date for Edward Holmes, charged with common assault. A similar charge against A.C. Cleaves was dismissed on payment of $12.50 costs. A common assault charge against Boyd Henderson was dismissed and costs were certified to Mississippi County. A similar charge against Phillip Sullivan was continued to June 21.

A charge of violating the compulsory attendance law against Robert and Claudia Waters was dismissed at $15 costs. Also dismissed was a felony charge of tampering with a motor vehicle against Ozine Davis.

Fines and charges in misdemeanor cases included: Archibald Eugene O'Hara of Charleston, improper passing-careless and imprudent driving, $31; Robert Gene Tripp of East Prairie, careless and imprudent driving, $31 and Willie L. Wicker Jr. of Anniston, speeding, $41.

Cases continued to June 14 included: Mary Thompson Marshall of Charleston, driving while intoxicated and speeding; Roy Eugene Patrick of Charleston, driving while intoxicated and driving while operator's license was revoked; Leslie Allen Achter of East Prairie, burglary and stealing; Dwight Eugene-Scruggs of Charleston, excessively loud mufflers; and Jimmie Darrell Hicks of Sikeston, burglary and stealing.

Two counts of running stop signs, a charge of running a red light, speeding and disregarding a red light and siren against Ronnie Watson of Charleston were dismissed.

Bond chooses Rendlen to head state GOP

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A Hannibal attorney who says he has "worked in the trenches" many years for the GOP, but never sought elected office, is the governor's choice to head the state Republican party.

He is Albert Rendlen Sr., 51, whom Bond recently named a regent at Northeast Missouri State University.

A member of the state GOP committee, he would succeed Richard L. Berkley, Kansas City councilman who said this week he is resigning because of business and personal reasons.

The state Republican committee meets here Saturday and is expected to pick a new state chairman.

Rendlen agreed to become a candidate for the post, even though it is not fulltime nor is it salaried.

There have been reports of a split in Republican ranks on what direction the party should take, following its takeover last fall of top state offices.

"If there are mild differences in the party, I feel I can work with all the elements," Rendlen said.

Another candidate for the post is Stanley P. Christopher, Kansas City lawyer, who told Bond he wanted the job. The governor, however, gave him no commitment of support.

Christopher was reported to have considerable support among Republicans in the Kansas City area, in the Missouri Senate and on the state committee. Berkley also reportedly support Christopher.

Another person considered by Bond was George Parker, former state representative from Columbia who is state director of business and administration, a position being eliminated in reorganization of state government.

Parker said he would be interested in the job if it was a fulltime paid position.

Berkley was selected chairman after Bond won the primary contest last August. The governor's office said Rendlen had the support at that time to become chairman, but he stepped aside for Berkley.

Some Republicans conseled Bond not to become involved in the selection of a state chairman, lest it further widen differences in the party. But a governor's aide said Bond decide to become involved because he would have to work closely with the chairman.

Behind some of the dissatisfaction is a complaint by some veteran Republicans that they have little influence in the new Republican administration, especially with Bond's younger staff members.

Watch his big smile that says "Thank You"

When the boy comes to collect...

Your newspaperboy makes it his business to collect at a regular time—convenient to you.

That way he comes expected and you can be ready for him.

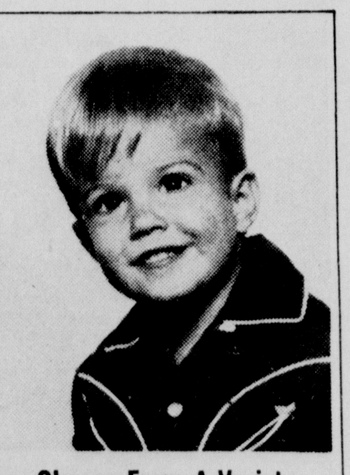

You can help, too, by having the money there so he won't have to come back. He'll appreciate that.

Because this boy is in business. He depends on the full collection of his route for his full profit. And repeat calls for him mean extra work with no extra profit.

Hence, next time the boy comes by to collect, be ready—and watch his big smile, which says "Thank you."

Summer program scheduled

Superintendent Sam Harbin has announced that the board of education of Sikeston R-6 School District is again providing a six week Title I Summer School program.

The school is designed for children in grades 1 through 5, who are having difficulty in reading, arithmetic or language. It will be totally financed with federal funds and will accommodate 200 students who have been selected and approved by both their teacher and principal.

Harriet Jones will serve as director and the program will be staffed by 25 teachers.

Classes will be held from 9 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. at Southwest School, and will begin June 11 and last through July 21. Students will be transported by bus.

Two buses will run, Bus 19 and Bus 17. Routes and times of pick- up and departure of Bus 19 are as follow: Proffer's Bi- Rite Grocery, 7:40 a.m. and 2:50 p.m.; Potlatch, 7:50 a.m. and 2:40 p.m.; Southeast School, 8 a.m. and 2:30 p.m.; Smith Housing 8:10 a.m. and 2:20 p.m.; Nancy's Sweet Shop, 8:20 a.m. and 2:10 p.m.; North Housing, 8:30 a.m. and 2 p.m.; Duke's Grocery, 8:35 a.m. and 1:50 p.m.; Kingsway Plaza, 8:45 a.m. and 1:40 p.m.; and corner of School and Gladys Streets, 8:50 a.m. and 1:35 p.m.

The Route and times of pick- up and departure of Bus 17 are: Morehouse Colony, 7:45 a.m. and 2:30 p.m.; Morehouse School, 8 a.m. and 2:20 p.m.; Maple Oil, 8:30 a.m. and 1:50 p.m.; Sunset Housing, 8:40 a.m. and 1:45 p.m.; and Lincoln

Everett Ray Dyson, 16, of 410 W. Gladys St. told police he was attacked and cut about 9:30 p.m. while working behind the Burger Chef restaurant on South Main Street.

Dyson, an employe of the restaurant, told police he had gone out behind the building to empty trash cans when someone came at him from behind the building, shined a light in his face, pushed him down and cut him on the stomach and the arm. Police said he had small cuts on the stomach and left arm and urged him to get a tetanus shot.

Dyson said he couldn't see the person who attacked him. The attacker apparently fled on foot.

Car recovered

Police recovered a car Thursday night about three hours after it had been stolen from the Tucker Trucking Co. lot on St. John's Drive.

The car, owned by Charles Blumenburg, Virginia Pines Apts., was stolen about 5:15 p.m. Police recovered the car at 8 p.m. at Dudley Park on Applegate Street. Witnesses told police that two youths were seen leaving the car at the park.

Slaying of Zook ruled self defense

CHARLESTON — A six-member jury, called by Mississippi County Coroner Elgin McMikle Thursday, ruled Dennis Johnston, 26, acted in self- defense when he shot Dewey Wayne Zook, 23, also of East Prairie with a .22 caliber rifle May 21.

Zook, who was shot once in the forehead near the hairline, died two days later in Baptist Memorial Hospital in Memphis, Tenn.

The jury heard testimony from 10 witnesses questioned by Prosecuting Attorney W. Clifton Banta Jr. Testifying were Bryant Johnston, Carol Scott, Jim Owens, policeman Jim McAfee, Kevin Johnson, Debbie Kindle, Minna Lea Kindle, Louise Razor, Sherie Razor and Margaretta Jenkins.

Bryant Johnston, 28, of East Prairie, brother of Dennis Johnston, was the only eye witness to the shooting. According to his testimony, he and his brother saw Zook the first time on May 31 about 11 a.m. at Owen's Saveway Station in East Prairie and later in the afternoon in Big Oak State Park where they had gone fishing with Johnny Tyler and Billy Ray Nolen.

While the Johnstons were out in a boat, Tyler yelled for them to come in, saying there were two girls who wanted to talk to them. When it began to rain, they returned to the bank and, according to Johnston, Zook ran toward them with his fists raised.

"Dennis had a boat paddle in his hand and told Dewey to leave him alone, 'You're always wanting to jump on me,'" Johnson said. He said his brother swung the paddle at Zook and a blow glanced off his arm. Zook ran to his car and got a tire tool.

"I jumped in the car and started down the road toward them, blowing the horn so Dewey would move. I told Denny to jump on the hood so we could get away and Dewey threw the tire tool and hit the car as we drove off," Johnston said.

According to Johnston, he and his brother drove around in Dorena awhile, went back to pick up their boat and stopped at Bennett's Store near Dorena on their way back to town where they borrowed a .22 caliber rifle from Dennis Bennett, saying they might go shoot some snakes if they went fishing again.

Arriving back in East Prairie, Johnston said they asked Carol Scott to follow them to the home of Raymond Morehead so they could return his car. She would then give them a ride home.

"I was driving Carol's car and as we were pulling into the yard of my mother's home, we saw Dewey driving up. He stopped his car, had the door open and one foot on the ground when he raised a shotgun. I started backing up in the car and he yelled at us, 'You s.o.b.s, get out. I'm fixing to kill you both.' Denny told him to leave before someone got hurt and he answered, 'You're damn right someone's going to get hurt. I'm going to kill you both.'"

"As I was backing up, he started creeping his car toward us and Denny shot four or five times at him from the back seat of the car," he said. According to Johnson, Zook fell out of his car and the car ran over him and continued to move about halfway down the block. They called the police and then an ambulance.

Miss Carol Scott testified she saw Zook stop his car on Martin Street and that he was raising the gun when she ducked down in the seat. Miss Scott said she heard Denny asked Dewey to leave, heard the cursing and the shots fired, but did not see the actual shooting.

The next witness was Jim Owens who testified Zook came to his service station on North Washington Drive between 4 p.m. and 4:30 p.m. that day. He said Zook told him that Annette Hawkins had lost her purse with $300 in it, that she thought Denny Johnston had

NEW MADRID — A coroner's jury returned a verdict of justifiable homicide Thursday afternoon at an inquest into the fatal shooting of Billy Joe Preslar, 38, of Portageville Thursday morning by Portageville Police Chief Joe Moore.

Witnesses included Moore, who testified voluntarily, police dispatcher Geoffrey Johnson and officer Hughey Crumley, who were the only persons known to have witnessed the shooting.

First to testify was Moore after he was advised of his legal rights and told he was not compelled to testify by Prosecuting Attorney Hal E. Hunter Jr. Moore said he understood his rights and stated, "I want to testify."

Moore, who has been police chief in Portageville for 18 years, said that as he was driving to the police station about 6:15 a.m., he saw Preslar coming out of French's Cafe about one- half block north of the police station. Moore said he got out of his car at the station and Preslar came down the street toward him.

As Preslar got nearer, Moore said he heard him say, "You s.o.b., I'm going to whip you." Continuing, Moore said, "I thought he was kidding." Moore charged that Preslar continued toward him and repeated several times he was going to whip him. When Preslar go near, Moore said he told him, "Bill, you are sick, let me take you to a doctor," and Preslar said, "You ain't no doctor."

When Preslar, who has been hospitalized on numerous occasions for mental illness, continued to say he was going to whip Moore, Moore said, "Let's talk this thing over." Preslar then said, "Pull off your glasses, I'm going to whip you." Again, Moore said he told Preslar he was sick and wanted to take him to a doctor.

Continuing, Moore said, "He hit me in the neck with his fist. I had unsnapped my pistol and, when I near about went down, as I came up, I shot him. I was scared of him and everybody else was scared of him," Moore said.

Preslar was described as 6 feet tall and weighed about 300 pounds. Moore said he was a strong man.

Moore further testified he had picked up Preslar on court orders many times when Preslar was to be institutionalized for treatment. He stated that he had never had an argument with Preslar or any previous trouble with him. Moore said Preslar had been known to have trouble with the police chief before him, and at one time had threatened to kill him.

Moore said he fired his gun at Preslar after Preslar hit him and was continuing to swing at him. The bullet struck Preslar under the left arm and he fell forward on his face.

"I didn't intend to kill him. I just wanted to stop him," Moore said.

Crash kills fireman

Leonard Overby, 54, of 534 Carroll suffered fatal injuries in a two- car traffic accident at 9:07 a.m. today in front of Wal-Mart Discount City on East Malone Avenue.

Overby was a volunteer fire captain and owner of Leonard's Shell Service Station on West Malone Avenue. Early reports indicated that Overby was enroute to a minor electrical fire at the office of Dr. H. B. Throgmorton, 801 N. Main Street, but late this morning police said they weren't sure where Overby was going. He was heading away from the scene of the fire at the time of accident.

He was pronounced dead at Missouri Delta Community Hospital at 10:05 a.m. Overby's chest was crushed against the steering wheel on impact, according to police.

Police said the accident occurred when a car driven by John Everett Masters, 70, of 214 Watson pulled out of Wal-Mart's parking lot in front of Overby's eastbound pickup truck. Masters was turning left onto the highway.

Police said there were no skid marks, indicating that Overby had no chance to use his brakes.

Masters was not injured. He was charged immediately after the accident with careless and imprudent driving. Police said further charges may be filed.

Overby was active in church, community and Masonic affairs. In addition to long service as a volunteer fireman, he had been a school bus driver for several years and was a member of First Baptist Church where he was a Sunday School department director and chairman of deacons. He also was a past master of Sikeston Lodge No. 310 AF & AM.

Flags at municipal buildings were lowered to half-mast after Overby's death. Fire Chief Larry Linnemeyer, who was attending a fire school in Dallas, Tex., left immediately for Sikeston upon hearing of the accident.

Overby had been a member of the fire department for 18 years.

He is survived by his wife, Dean and three children, Danny, Dennis and Ramona. The body is at Nunnelee Funeral Home where arrangements are incomplete.

Beatrice Dempster dies

Beatrice Lenore Dempster, 58, of 226 N. Kingshighway, wife of attorney Robert A. Dempster, died at 2 p.m. Thursday at Missouri Delta Community Hospital.

Born Nov. 26, 1914 in Longmont, Colo. she was the daughter of the late David W. Dobbins and Jessie Mayo Dobbins of Longmont. She attended University of Denver where she received a bachelor of arts degree and a master's degree in library science. Upon graduation, she accepted a position as assistant librarian in Albuquerque, N. M. In 1940, she accepted a position in Sikeston as librarian and continued to serve in that position until Oct. 1, 1942.

On Oct. 25, 1942, she married Robert A. Dempster, who was a Naval officer then on duty at U. S. Naval Training Station in Great Lakes, Ill. While Dempster served overseas in the Navy, Mrs. Dempster taught in the Longmont public schools. In 1945, she and Dempster returned to Sikeston where he resumed his law practice.

Mrs. Dempster has served many offices in both the Methodist Church and the Sikeston Civic Club. She was chairman of the district Women's Society of Christian Service of the United Methodist Church. She had been a member of the official board of Wesley United Methodist Church for the last five years and was chairman of the board of Sikeston Public Library. Mrs. Dempster had served on the library board for many years.

The body is at the home where friends may call until services at 2 p.m. Saturday in Wesley United Methodist Church with the Rev. Floyd Brower officiating, assisted by the Rev. Paul Walker, pastor of First Christian Church.

Burial will be in the Dempster family plot in City Cemetery.

Bill O'Guinn Funeral Home is in charge of arrangements.

GOLD PRICE SOARS

During the financial week of May 14-18 the price of gold soared to $128.50 an ounce in Paris and to $110 an ounce in London, up $65 in January. Some Europeans were reported to be saying, "Get rid of dollars at all cost." The reason: bad international publicity directed against the United States by the Watergate overplay.

Yet hear this from Business in Brief, issued bi-monthly by the Chase Manhattan Bank in New York:

"The U. S. economy is verging on an outright boom. While many analysts expect the pace to become more moderate in the near future, actual signs of a slackening growth rate have yet to appear.

"Total retail sales for the first three months of the year rose an amazing 16.5 per cent above the same months in 1972. Automobile sales continue to shatter all records.

"Business investment in new plants and equipment is growing steadily, and plans for future investment are being increased.

"Industrial production has been rising at an annual rate of over 8 per cent over the past six months -- close to twice the long term average."

It is ironic that in this time of unparalleled prosperity at home, the American dollar should be under such attack abroad.

Leonid Brezhnev, the anti-capitalist Communist bureaucratic boss of the world's leading empire, is making out very well for himself in his world survey of what he hopes to be future Communist real estate. In 1972 he picked up a shiny new Cadillac as a gift from President Nixon; later he was given a zippy Citroen-Maserati by President Pompidou of France, and now he has just been given a snappy silver- grey Mercedes by Chancellor Brandt of Germany. At this rate, he'll have to build a bigger garage; no great problem, with so much slave labor available in the Soviet Union.

BOND EXPECTS
PLANE POOL
TO SAVE MONEY

JEFFERSO CITY — A state airplane pool operated by the administration of Gov. Christopher S. Bond is expected to save the state more than $20,000 a year the governor said.

Plans for the airplane pool were disclosed Thursday in The Globe- Democrat.

Bond wrote the Joint Legislative Commiteee on Fiscal Affairs Friday, seeking approval of his system to bill individual state agencies that use the planes.

The governor also asked the Fiscal Affairs Committee to approve the purchase of two small, twin - engine airplanes that will be placed in the aircraft pool for use by all state officials and agencies.

The pool already is being operated, according to the State Office of Administration.

Is Alger Hiss controversial?

Accuracy In Media's report says not according to NBC. On Dec. 13, 1972, the NBC radio station in New York City aired a 90- minute interview with Hiss, giving him an opportunity to proclaim his innocence without anyone bringing up facts that would contradict him or cause him any embarrassment.

NBC has informed AIM that it does not intend to offer any time for anyone to give the true facts about Alger Hiss, his espoinage activities and his conviction for perjury for denying that he engaged in such activities. NBC's explanation was that since these events occurred more than twenty years ago, the program was of "historical interest."

AIM filed a fairness doctrine complaint about this program on March 4, 1973. It pointed out that Mr. Hiss is currently appearing on radio and TV to promote his recently republished book, which is a whitewash of his past. Since there is strong evidence against Mr. Hiss, his claims of innocence are highly controversial.

Moreover, AIM informed the FCC that Herbert Philbrick, an expert on the Communist Party, had recently stated over WTTG, a Washington TV station, that the rehabilitation and vindication of Alger Hiss is an important objective of the Communist Party. Mr. Philbrick said that if the public can be convinced that Hiss was innocent, it will be easier to argue that penetration of the government by Communist agents in the past was just a myth. Mr. Philbrick pointed out that this will be useful to the Communists in their campaign to abolish the House Internal Security Committee, the Senate Internal Security Subcommittee and to eliminate security safeguards in the Federal Government.

It remains to be seen whether the FCC will be able to see the matter of the fairness doctrine as clearly as WTTG, or whether it will agree with NBC that there can be nothing important or controversial about something that happened twenty years ago.

WHEN MAN CEASES
TO EXPLORE ...

Mr. Willard F. Rockwell, Jr., chief executive officer of North American Rockwell Corporation, a firm deeply involved in space and commercial manufacturing, makes the strongest kind of case for continuing the U. S. program of space exploration. He observes that nearly 249 years elapsed from the first voyage of Columbus, in 1492, and Vitus Bering's discovery of Alaska in 1741. "In those 249 action-packed years," he comments, "every great land mass was uncovered and virtually every shore charted, and the foundation was laid for the development of the world as we know it today."

From Columbus' first voyage, through the ensuing centuries of exploration, skeptics could see no useful purpose -- financially or otherwise -- in the undertakings of the explorers. Yet they followed Columbus across the Atlantic and settled on the shores he discovered. They followed the trailblazers across the continent of North America just as they have followed the path of pioneers all through history and have benefited enormously from every step forward. And, so it is today with space exploration. Man has landed on the moon, and the skeptics say it is a waste of time and money -- but is it?

Mr. Rockwell points out that, even now, tangible benefits from the space program are visible. He said, "In the United States we estimate that our windfall of technolgoy from the space program is already returning four dollars of value for every dollar invested." When man ceases to explore, he will cease to live.

PHONY BUDGET
CUTBACKS

Though at moments overshadowed by other events, the Nixon Administration's campaign to portray Congress as a reckless spendthrift and the President as the implacable enemy of wasteful, inflationary spending continues unabated. The President and his surrogates, supplied by the White House with speeches, statistics and even anecdotal material, claim that his 268 billion dollar budget for fiscal 1974 would have been 17 billion dollars larger had not the President taken the initiative to curtail or eliminate many programs.

A close examination of the Administration's claims, however, discloses that most of the proposed savings are predicated more on an ideological bias against social welfare programs than on any dispassionate analysis of their worth and that, moreover, fully 8 billion of the alleged 17 billion dollars in savings is, to put it charitably, artificial.

Using documents furnished by the President's Office of Management and Budget, the staff of the Joint Economic Committee found that some 8 billion dollars in so-called savings are being achieved in two ways: first, by making unrealistic projections of the cost of certain programs and then reducing them by an amount that would have been spent anyway; and second, by appearing to order a slow-down in spending for projects that are being postponed in any case by unforeseen delays.

For example, the Administration estimated that it would "save" 1.2 billion dollars next fiscal year in farm support programs. But this estimate was predicted on the incorrect assumption that there would be a huge agricultural surplus, requiring large set-aside payments and price supports. As everyone knows, though, there is a world-wide shortage of grain that will permit American farmers to sell as much as they can grow. Thus, the staff analysis concluded, half of the 1.2 billion dollar reduction is based on conditions that do not exist.

Perhaps the most astonishing exercise in trickery is the claim that the defense budget has been trimmed by 2.7 billion dollars when in fact it has risen by 4.7 billion. The 2.7 billion represents the amount that each of the services would have received if the Administration had acceded to their full requests. The military services always ask for more than an Administration is expected to allot; this is the first one to advertise the difference as a budget reduction.

There are authentic savings on the order of 9 billions being proposed, of course — in the antipoverty program, water pollution control, manpower training, health services and so forth. Many reductions may be warranted, but the Economic Committee staff was unable to find any program evaluations to justify the cuts; instead, the OMB documents simply made blanket assertions.

Once upon a time the federal budget was considered to be the true and telling measure of what the government was all about. Perhaps it still is, but it is a dismal commentary that a staff of experts now is needed to explain to the citizen that the document is not exactly what it seems.

ENCOURAGING
NEW DIRECTION

At long last, it appears congressional action may be taken to relieve the nation's railroads of the financial burden of maintaining money-losing passenger trains -- trains that regulatory authorities have considered essential to public convenience and necessity. A proposal before Congress calls for creation of a National Railroad Passenger Corporation to assume the financial responsibility for operating passenger trains over a national network designated by the Secretary of Transportation.

The president of the Association of American Railroads, Mr. Thomas M. Goodfellow, has urged speedy adoption of the proposal -- with amendments to improve it. He has pointed out that the "restraint" apparent in railroad endorsement of the proposal, "stems from the fact that we believe there is need for ... changes which will materially improve the bill." One of the "more important" amendments sought by the industry would permit railroads, not joining the government corporation, to seek discontinuance of money - losing passenger trains not designed as part of the national system of pasenger train service. The law, as now proposed, would prohibit these railroads from eliminating any passenger service before 1975.

Inflationary cost increases have driven rail earnings down to the vanishing point. A law that forces a rail line to continue for five years the operation of a passenger service that could tip the scales on the side of insolvency would seem to defeat the very purpose of government action intended to life money- losing passenger trains off the backs of the railroads.

A large part of today's rail problems, and for that matter the problem of transportation generally, are due to failure of the regulatory process to keep abreast of transport change and progress. Whatever measures are taken to cast off the shackles of passenger train losses should recognize that time can be a make- or - break factor in the operation of a taxpaying, investor - owned private enterprise.

ASK A SILLY QUESTION

On one of his trips to Washington, Kosygin was shown a new computer in the Pentagon. To demonstrate the machine's ability to predict the future, someone asked, "What will the U. S. be like 50 years from now?"

The machine printed out a detailed reply almost instantly. Then Kosygin asked it, "What will the USSR be like 50 years from now?" and out came the answer. Kosygin stared at it curiously.

"What does it say?" he was asked.

"I don't know," Kosygin replied. "I can't read it. It's in Chinese.

CONGRESS' JOB:
TREASURY

Leftish lawmakers and media spokesmen are up in arms over delays in spending of federal funds. It is not the excessive spending or the deficit spending that upsets them, spending which has ruined the dollar's once pre-eminent place among world currencies.

Congress' first job is to protect the citizens of the United States and to protect the Treasury from raids on the taxpayers' money. The chief reason Congress was given control of the purse strings in the first place was to protect the taxpayers from excessive spending by the Executive. The Founders learned from bitter experience and the entire history of government that a checkrein must be placed on spending to protect the people.

Before the right of elected representatives to limit taxation and spending was recognized, despotic rulers could tax and spend as they pleased, and did so. Treasuries were bankrupted periodically throughout history as rulers sought to "do good" for their people and glorify themselves through excessive spending on massive "public works," monuments, territorial expansion, etc.

Today's left- leaning opinion- molders and lawmakers have reversed the essential role of Congress, which is to protect the taxpayers and the Treasury. They want Congress to open the doors of the Treasury, disarm the nation and our people, and change our Republic into some Marxist monstrosity. Only the people's concern and orgnaized action can preserve our Republic. It is too late not to get started. HLH

Class Struggle--- U.S. Style Union Launches Stock Proxy War To Take Big Fighter Plane Firm's Management

WASHINGTON— With Soviet Communist party leader Leonid Brezhnev, spokesman pro tem for the late Karl Marx, about to fly into this feverish community, this is the time to report what passes for a capitalist- type class struggle. Especially since the story has been virtually unreported nationally.

It might intrigue Brezhnev to learn that leaders of some 12,000 aircraft workers in the huge McDonnell Douglas warplane complex near St. Louis (Mo.) plan to take over management of the installation. Peacefully. And by proxy. Real proxies. In fact, a new kind of proxy war. Collectively, the workers, mostly members of Red Smith's International Assn. of Machinists (AFL— CIO), own about five million shares of the company's stock.

It should intrigue Comrade Brezhnev to learn that this corporation which produces the F- 4 Phantom fighters, the world's best warplane, paid for a considerable amount of this stock for the workers. Under a 1969 union- company saving program, McDonnell Douglas puts up 50 cents for every dollar put into a central fund by an IAM- member employe. When each worker has enough to pay for a full share, the company automatically credits him or her with one.

Now the regional IAM District 837 leadership, directed by its president Gus Troia, has decided to demand a voice in management, open a drive to elect some officers of the corporation, and especially to help make policy on foreign trade. So president Troia and his colleagues decided to launch a proxy fight against incumbent corporate officers. Troia is a realist. He knows he can't capture the management.

But he can try. And in trying, he can whip up considerable visibility for the Machinists' policies--- which mostly condense to a demand that the company not permit the F- 4 to be made in Japan. This simplifies it. But more momentarily.

First, shortly the Machinists union will elect a single spokesman. He will be able, under the stratagem, to cast as many proxies as the District can whip up for him. The amount, of course, is not certain. But Troia plans to make the rounds of other McDonnell Douglas installations, especially in California.

Then with the proxy votes in hand, the spokesman will attend the company's next stockholders meeting come spring 1974, and cast them in a bloc.

Officials in the Machinists' national headquarters here, which has a sophisticated computer as an in- house weapon in this capitalist class struggle, claim they'll have most of the workers' securities--- or "about 15 per cent of all outstanding shares." Well, my broker tells me McDonnell Douglas has some 37 million shares "on the street." But the Machinists believe they can come to the board of directors election meeting with the largest single bloc of proxies.

The union is particularly incensed at what its leaders call a "vast" sale of 91 F- 4 fighters to Japan.

Two of the fighters are scheduled to be produced in the Missouri plant--- and 89 will be made in Japan. The union wants the work, the jobs and, of course, its share of the profits in increased wages and benefits. It also decries the fact that the Japanese aircraft workers, after the warplanes are built, will have developed the expertise, and the production combine will have the blueprints, for future competition with the U.S. in general and McDonnell Douglas in particular.

Considering the proportion of stock the employes can vote, there isn't much chance of a coup d'etat. And it is a unique "class war," since the workers do, with the help of the management, own some 15 per cent of the firm. But the Machinists' proxy campaign does mean that the union will have some voice--- and a loud one--- at stockholders' annual meetings from now on and will be listened to carefully. Ignoring this voice would create considerable "personnel problems," says one national union official.

Significant, too, is the national development of a phenomenon which one must add to previous socio-industrial moves. There was the four- day week. It died. There was, and perhaps still is, the job- enrichment intellectual fad.

And now there is the movement for a direct voice and participation in corporate management. This is not a fad. It is a reflection of the earliest stages of the British labor movement's drive for nationalization and the German unions' successful co-determination, co- management, co- decision making. In the U.S. it's all in its industrial infancy. But one regional official of the United Rubber Workers did demand that the General Tire Co. put a union official on its board of directors. This is co-determination. And United Auto Workers vice president Irving Bluestone, head of the union's General Motors bargaining division, is pushing for "worker participatin in decision making to achieve democracy at the workplace." To Bluestone, who will head the union's negotiations with GM, "human satisfaction at the workplace" is more important than "increasing productivity" or quality.

Today's rhetoric is tomorrow's realism. It isn't exactly Mr. Brezhnev's kind of revolution. But it is the beginning of a struggle which should intrigue him.

Washington Merry-Go-Round
By Jack Anderson

JACK ANDERSON SAYS:
The Burundi Horror and U.S. Indifference

WASHINGTON— Far from the tumult of the American political campaign, in the African state of Burundi, the massacre of a quarter million people was reaching full horror a year ago.

From early May through August, the tall statuesque Tutsi nobility undertook the systematic slaughtering of their ethnic rivals, the Hutus. The Tutsis literally went crazy with revenge over the attempted Hutus coup. When ammunition ran short, the Tutsis used sledgehammers and even bulldozers to massacre the Hutus.

Some Hutus managed to flee the country but most were not so fortunate. Men, women and children were murdered at a rate of more than a thousand a day.

In Washington, meanwhile, both the White House and the State Department were aware of the enormity of the carnage, but made no public protest. Instead, official Washington chose "quiet diplomatic pressure" which failed utterly to alleviate the tragedy.

U.S. SAT BACK

Now, a year later, a special task force, funded by the prestigious Carnegie Endowment, has reconstructed the sad tale of U.S. inaction in the face of mass genocide. Project director Roger Morris, a former aide to Henry Kissinger on African affairs, describes the U.S. policy as "largely a record of indifference, inertia and irresponsibility."

The unpublished study singles out two State Department officials--- Assistant Secretary David Newsom and Central African Affairs Director Herman Cohen--- as the policymakers who "made the crucial decisions."

Here are its major charges against the two officials:

-- The policy makers "rejected out of hand" a proposal to place an embargo on American imports of Burundian coffee, even though some sanction of Burundain coffee could have been used as a strong bargaining tool. U.S. coffee purchases account for 80 per cent of Burundi's export earnings. "The coffee proposal never received a serious hearing," the report charges. The proposal, in fact, was not even discussed informally with Folgers Coffee, the main purchaser of Burundian coffee. The Nixon Administration, however, would "have enjoyed ready access" to Folgers "had it tried," says the report. For former top White House aide Bryce Harlow was then in charge of government affairs for Proctor and Gamble, the parent company of Folgers.

ADVISER IGNORED

-- The policymakers ignored their own legal adviser for African affairs, Keith Huffman, who advised stronger action. In mid- August, Huffman put his argument in writing in an internal memo. "While inaction in the face of a human rights crisis might be rationalized on the grounds of political expediency, such expedience cannot justify U.S. action...."

-- The policy makers "repeatedly misled Congress." As one example, the Carnegie study notes that Sen. Ted Kennedy, D- Mass., was assured in mid- June that "the civil strife had ended. "A week later, from Burundi, U.S. Charge d'Affaires Michael Hoyt described the killings as "selective genocide." And the killings continued unabated through August.

-- The policymakers, overly cynical, knew from the start their "quiet diplomacy" had "little chance of relieving the tragedy." Adds the report: "Though that failure soon became obvious, policymakers then stood by for nearly four months while the killing went on."

Rather than make the "touch choice" and involve itself, the United States persisted to try to involve the Organization of African Unity, various African heads of state and the United Nations. "None of the efforts to involve the Africans was successful... U.S. officials were not particularly surprised by this failure."

'ROUTINE' REACTION

Throughout the summer, U.S. reaction to the killings was described by the State Department officials themselves as "routine."

The one bright spot in the U.S. handling of the Burundi killings occurred in early May when Ambassador Thomas Melady broke through red tape and got $100,000 worth of emergency aid for the Hutu victims.

Melady also arranged a "low- key" letter of protest from the Papal Nuncio. But three weeks later, incredibly, Melady was reassigned to Uganda, another African troublespot. So, from June until September 1972, at the height of the killings, there was no U.S. ambassador in Burundi.

Footnote! We were unable to reach Assistant Secretary David Newsom for comment, but his subordinate, Herman Cohen, told us that the White House "was very much aware" of State Department policy toward Burundi. "We did what we thought was right," said Cohen. He added that he thought no policy--- short of military intervention--- could have stopped the killings.

NEW YORK (AP) — Are you ready to give up?

Some say the world is going to hell. Others say it is already there but the arrival wasn't given proper notice.

In any case, the main thing wrong with the environment of man seems to be man himself. He is disillusioned with himself and the world he made. He dwells in an atmosphere of hate, fear, cynicism, and distrust.

If he had a motto it would be the old phrase: "All is lost."

Yet if one dispassionately analyzes man's plight, it would seem there is as much dramatic self-pity in it as real despair. Man has always been a breastbeater and a male Cassandra. He can always see the black cloud before he notices its silver lining.

All is lost? No, indeed. There are several signs and portents to indicate that the world is approaching hell at no more than its normal speed. What are these signs of hope — and perhaps even cheer?

Well, to name a few:

Every week still has a Friday as well as a Monday in it.

If you are the kind of guy who likes attractive widows, there are more of them around now than there were in 1900.

The pro football season will start in a few weeks.

There is no national election this year.

The whooping crane is whooping it up because it has again avoided extinction. Think how much smaller your world would be without a whooping crane in it to save.

In most cities you can still get a haircut and have enough change from a $5 bill to take a bus ride home.

You don't have to eat so many leftovers. At today's prices who can afford leftovers?

Since extremists in the women's liberaton movement have banned the wearing of brassieres, there has been more bounce to the ounce in girlwatching.

Men are getting stronger. A generation ago a man could hardly stagger home under the weight of $20 worth of groceries. Now he can easily lug them home under one arm.

Fie on gloom! And fie on doomsayers, too! The almost perfect world is getting almost more perfect in every way — if you just look on the bright side of things.

Rotary to hold auction

The Sikeston Rotary Club auction has been scheduled June 23 at 10 a.m. at Midtowner Village Shopping Center, according to club members who met Friday at the El Capri Motel. Proceeds from the auction will sponsor the Bootheel Youth Fair and other Rotary Club projects.

Certificates and items donated by Sikeston merchants will be displayed in the retail establishments and identified by Rotary posters. Sikeston residents may contribute any white elephant items by contacting a club member or phoning 471- 8175 or 471- 4652 between 9 a.m. and 5 p.m.

A Rotary Club task force will pick up all donated items from residents and merchants.

Committee approves reorganization bill

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The joint House-Senate Conference Committee on Reorganization approved a bill Thursday night reorganizing the executive branch of state government into 13 new departments and the Office of Administration.

Reps. Harold Volkmer, D-Hannibal, and Robert Snyder, R-Kirkwood, said they will oppose it because the bill does not accomplish the job authorized by the voters in August.

The bill now goes back to the Senate and House floors.

The central point of dispute is the Senate's victory of advice and consent over department directors as well as several division heads below them. Snyder said advice and consent "is the rape of these departments as far as management is concerned."

Gov. Christopher S. Bond, who opposes several points in the bill, said he will take a "hard look" before making his decision to approve or veto the bill if it passes both houses.

A joint conference committee failed Thursday night to agree on tax relief for the elderly, another constitutional amendment approved by the voters last fall.

Another meeting was scheduled for this afternoon.

The hangup was how much rent would be included in a formula for figuring income tax rebates.

The Senate wants 15 per cent of the year's annual rent and the House members stuck to 25 per cent.

There also is a difference on the property tax formula, but conferees appeared close to an agreement on the House version.

Both versions would make the bill apply to persons 65 or over earning less than $7,500 a year. The original House bill had a $10,000 limit.

A household with an income of $7,000 and a property tax of $400 would get $80 knocked off the state income tax in the House version and $100 in the Senate version.

With an annual income of $7,000 and an annual rent total of $1,875, a household would receive a $94 income tax rebate under the House version and $100 under the Senate version.

The House formula provides more income tax credit than the Senate for renters with incomes under $5,000.

Estimates of the loss of income tax revenue to the state run from $14 million to $22 million a year, depending on the rent percentage used.

In other action Thursday, a bill setting up an overseas trade office to promote Missouri products received Senate approval but was returned to the House with an amendment allowing only one office to be established. The location has not been determined, but Brussels or Tokyo have been suggested. Such an office is expected to cost the state $48,000 a year.

Amended and returned to the House was a bill removing the $1 per day limit on wages of state prison inmates.

The House passed four Senate bills designed to bring Missouri laws into compliance with new federal regulations for public assistance. They go back to the Senate for approval of House amendments that don't make any major changes in the bills.

BLOOMFIELD — Preliminary hearings were held Thursday for Jack Barker and Clyde Brown, charged with felonious assault against W. B. Bowie Jr. of Greenbrier, Ark. and D. L. Bowie of Emola, Ark.

Barker was bound over to Circuit Court and his bond remains at $1,000. Charges were dismissed against Clyde Brown.

Barker and Brown were charged with the beating of the Bowie Brothers at the Drive- In Tavern near Dudley on May 7. Trial was set for April 14 for Clyde Brown, also charged with public disturbance at the tavern. Warrants were issued for the arrest of Lloyd Brown and Charles Griffin, charged with public disturbance the same evening, at the Drive- In Tavern.

Bond was forfeited and a warrant was issued for the arrest of Wayne Haynes, charged with molesting a minor.

A charge of common assault was dismissed and a new charge of felonious assault was entered against Paul Dees of Dexter. Dees was ordered to make bond in the amount of $1,000. Preliminary was set for June 14. Preliminary hearing was set for June 14 for Gerald Freed of Dexter, charged with forgery.

Trial was set for June 14 for Donald R. Hendley, charged with non- support.

Floyd G. England of Sikeston pleaded not guilty to a charge of driving while intoxicated. Trial was set for June 21. Willis Albert Layton was found guilty of a charge of littering at the Bloomfield lookout tower, April 13. Layton was fined $50 and given a 90- day jail sentence, suspended upon payment of fine and costs.

Trial was set for June 21 for Henry W. Richardson, who pleaded not guilty to a charge of driving while intoxicated and no operator's license.

Maurice Thompson entered a plea of not guilty to a charge of insufficient funds check and trial was set for June 21. Steven E. Cooper, entered a written plea of guilty, to a charge of possession of intoxicating beverages and was fined $50. Donnie G. Russell, charged with driving while intoxicated, was fined $100 and ordered to surrender his driver's license. Steven E. Cooper, charged with possession of intoxicating beverages by a minor, was fined $50.

Hurley Q. Guling, charged with common assault, was fined $15. Joe Daniel Hockett of Sikeston, charged with public intoxication, was fined $10.

John Louis Stanford, charged with possession of intoxicating beverages by a minor, entered a written plea of guilty and was fined $50.

Trial was set for June 14 for John R. Harris, who pleaded not guilty, to a charge of having an overweight truck.

Sixteen others paid fines for various charges:

Ned Warner Tanner Jr. of Sikeston, speeding, $16; Harold Gene Boner, entered a written plea of guilty to a charge of speeding and was fined $11; Regina Gail Bowling of Bloomfield, careless and imprudent driving, $15; Daniel Ray Jones of Dexter, illegal vehicle license, $10;

Lonnie Daughetry of Bernie, permitting an unauthorized person to drive, $5 Carroll R. Deal of Sikeston, speeding, $13; Hubert Lee Jones of Malden, careless and imprudent driving, $15. Marlin Lee Payne of Puxico, improper registration, $10; Dannie Ray Hodge of Puxico, speeding $14; Roscoe Meyers, overweight on truck, $25. David Harold Pinkley, speeding, $18;

Eugene Leon Glasted, entered a written plea of guilty to a charge of no motorcycle helmet and was fined $10; Dorothy E. Desgranges of Poplar Bluff, speeding, $16; James E. Cook, entered a written plea of guilty, to a charge of speeding and was fined $14.

Joseph A. Thomason, no motorcycle helmet, $10; Richard D. Dickens, faulty muffler, entered a written plea of guilty and was fined $10.

Senate approves nomination

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The nomination of Charles M' Kiefner as adjutant general has been approved by a Senate Gubernatorial Appointments Committee.

The action Thursday ended speculation about Kiefner's future as head of the state's National Guard. The Perryville lumberman, a lieutenant colonel, was appointed by Gov. Christopher S. Bond April 2.

His nomination was expected to be approved today by the Senate.

The committee took no action on the nomination of Lee R. Schuster of Gower, near St. Joseph, as a University of Missouri curator.

The Senate committee had delayed approval of Kiener when committee Chairman Sen. William J. Cason, D-Clinton, requested more time to look into the appointment.

When no opponents appeared last month to testify against Kiefner, several of his commanding officers rose and spoke in his behalf.

Cason persisted in his delay, saying he wanted to know more about why more than 40 officers who outranked Kiefner were passed over for the nomination.

Finally, the committee voted Thursday 5-1 to approve Kiefner. Cason voted no.

The committee must approve nominations before they can be finally approved by the Senate, which is usually a formality after committee action.

Bond has said he will not withdraw Schuster's nomination.

Committee members had objected to Schuster's appointment because of his views about liberal acceptance of federal grants and his support of expansion of the university's agricultural extension program.

Cason told the committee he had heard rumors that if the committee did not take action on Schuster, the matter might be contested in court.

No one suggested taking up the appointment.

The committee plans to meet one more time before the legislature adjourns next Friday night.

Counties will now receive funds direct

JEFFERSON CITY — All county governments in Missouri will now receive their County Aid Road Trust Funds directly from the State Treasurer. Gov. Christopher S. Bond, when signing the bill into law on June 6, gave full credit for the passage of the bill to the newly- formed Missouri Association of Counties.

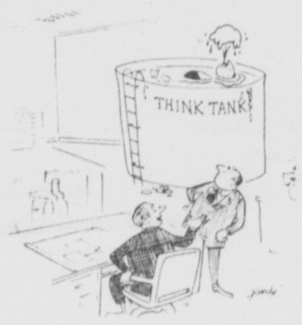

The measure was passed unanimously by both the House of Representatives and the Senate. It was sponsored by Rep. William Crigler (D-Howard County), Rep. Larry Mead (R-Boone County) and Sen. Norman Merrill (D-Lewis County).

Gov. Bond said the Missouri Association of Counties' bill was a step in returning local government to the people and placing counties in a more responsive role.

In the past, Missouri counties have received these funds only after a lengthy process of submitting projects to the State Highway Department, obtaining approval of the project and approval of the work upon completion of the project. In many instances the funds were not paid to a county until sixty or ninety days after the project was completed. Other county funds were tied up until reimbursement was received from the state.

The County Aid Road Trust is derived form the counties' five per cent share of the state gasoline tax. Counties are permitted to use the money from the fund for the construction, reconstruction, maintenance and repairs on county roads, bridges and highways.

Jaycees to sponsor antique flea market

DEXTER— An antique flea market will be held June 16. For the event two blocks of downtown Stoddard Street will be closed to all traffic.

Anyone may bring any type of antique to sell, trade or put on display. Farm tools, glass, cars, wagons, musical instruments, arts and crafts or artifacts will also be accepted.

Each parking meter will constitute space for the antique items. There will be no charge for the space provided. Persons living outside Dexter and from area towns are also invited to participate.

An old time medicine show will provide entertainment.

There will also be many other displays in the downtown areas.

Agreement reached on police pay raises

KENNETT — An agreement on a pay raise for the Kennett Police Department was reached Wednesday night in a joint meeting of the council's police and finance committees, whose members met with a majority of the policemen in a three- hour meeting.

Dr. Maynard Sisler, chairman of the police committee, said the meeting resulted in budgeting a "substantial raise" for members of the police force, "which was more than our original estimate and closer to their request."

The exact amount was not disclosed, however, Dr. Sisler said the raises would not exceed the amount originally budgeted for that department.

The agreement, he noted, is subject to final approval of the council.

"If this is passed, as is believed, then everyone (on the force) will be working a little harder but happier," he said.

The terms include a partial raise and expense allowances.

The five Kennett policemen who had notified the council Tuesday night their plans to resign to find higher paying jobs if a salary increase was not forthcoming said Thursday that the resignations will be withdrawn, pending approval of the council in the next meeting.

Charged were:

Green B. Greer, 16 Green Meadows, careless and imprudent driving; John Quincy Walden, 602 N. Main, no city sticker; Roosevelt Smith, 226 N. Kingshighway, rear, public intoxication; Jimmy Sloan, 129 N. West, trespassing, peace disturbance and assault and battery.

Marla Mona Bartlett, 217 Harrison, was arrested for careless and imprudent driving after being released from the hospital. She was injured in an accident Tuesday on Linn Street.

Area FHA members attend conference

Three Sikeston girls and one Bell City girl were official delegates last week to the state meeting of Future Homemakers of America on the University of Missouri campus in Columbia. The girls were delegates of Sikeston and Bell City high school FHA chapters and were among more than 1,000 delegates representing a state membership of 17,500 members.

The girls, Barbara Boshears, Jana Sims and Teresa Webb of Sikeston and Sheila Adams of Bell City, were accompanied by Mrs. Helen Calhoun, SHS home economics advisor, and Mrs. Helon Myrick, BCHS home economics teacher. Donna Kelley, Martha Pullen and Daronda Lewis of the Bell City chapter also attended the meeting as non-delegates.

Miss Boshears is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bill Boshears, 103 Selma, Miss Sims is the daughter of Mrs. Pat Sims, 301 Benton, and Miss Webb is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lowell Webb, 1306 W. Murray Lane.

The girls reported that the meeting was packed with workshops, discussion groups, outstanding speakers and fun time. The meeting theme was "FHA in a Moving World" and explored the effect of world events on FHA members.

During the leadership action labs, delegates explored areas ranging from preparing a speech to effective group relations. Special interest sessions were on such topics as religion, citizenship, population problems, working with handicapped, early marriages and women in today's society.

Mrs. Ramsey guest artist for June

Shirley Ramsey

Guest artist at Two Tony's Smorgasbord Restaurant for the month of June will be Shirley Ramsey of Bell City.

Two of her paintings, "A Bullfight" and "Spanish Lady", have been on permanent display behind the desk at the restaurant for some time. These paintings are oils on velvet.

The exhibit will include several velvet paintings, as well as landscapes, still life and paintings of children and animals.

Mrs. Ramsey has been painting for many years but only began to show her work approximately four years ago.

Tri-county members of Delta Kappa Gamma meet

Alpha Delta chapter of Delta Kappa Gamma sorority with members from New Madrid, Pemiscot and Dunklin counties held a luncheon meeting Saturday at Dutch Pantry Restaurant on Highway 62 East.

Mrs. Leona Koch of Columbia, Delta state president, was guest of honor. Other guests were Mrs. LaRita McIntyre of Morehouse, president of Beta Gamma chapter, and Mrs. G. Gilliam of Kennett.

Chapter members Wanda McAnnally of Kennett, president of the Southeast Missouri Teachers Association, and Jeanette Haubold of Marston, executive board member of the association, were presented corsages.

Hostesses were Margaret Evans and Ann Taylor of Sikeston, Jo Anne Hardin of Kewanee, Jeanette Haubold, Freida Park of Malden and Brenda Curtis and Madge Utterback of New Madrid.

Miss Reed listed in high school Who's Who

DEXTER — Terrie Jean Reed, a senior at Dexter High School, was recently notified that she is to be featured in the seventh annual edition of Who's Who Among American High School Students, 1972-73, the largest student award publication in the nation.

Students from over 18,000 public, private and parochial high schools throughout the country are recognized for their leadership in academics, athletics, activities or community service in the book.

Miss Reed is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wafe B. Reed of Dexter Route Three. She is active in church choir and the school art club and was president of 4-H Club, art chairman of Future Homemakers of America and vice president of Future Business Leaders of America.

He has also won state 4-H honors and was a district winner in an art poster contest. She is a district representative in her 4-H Club at Dexter High School and has won the 1973 school award.

In addition to having her biography published in the book, Miss Reed will also compete for one of ten $1,000 scholarship awards funded by the publishers and will be invited to participate in the firm's annual survey of high achievers late in the academic year.

Miss Reed plans to attend Arkansas State University in Jonesboro, Ark., upon graduation.

SeMo State summer registration Monday

CAPE GIRARDEAU — With a revised format which benefits the students, the summer session at Southeast Missouri State University will begin with registration Monday. Classes will start the following day.

In recent years the university has operated an eight- week summer session during which students could earn up to nine hours of credit. This summer the term has been expanded to nine weeks, and two so- called "short sessions" of four- and-one- half weeks have been established within the nine-week period.

A student may enroll for up to 12 hours of credit during the nine- week regular session, or up to six hours of credit during either of the short sessions.

The first short session will run through July 12 and the second will be from July 13- Aug. 10. Aug. 10 is also the closing date of the regular term and summer commencement exercises are scheduled on Aug. 11.

By enabling students to earn three more hours during the summer than previously, the university has made it possible for a graduate student to complete a master's degree in three summers instead of four and for an undergraduate to earn a bachelor's degree in three academic years and two summers.

Another advantage is that a student may earn as many as six hours of credit in just four and one- half weeks, leaving plenty of time for him to do something else during the remainder of the summer season.

Lyman Evnas, director of admissions at Southeast Missouri State, said there is still time for prospective students to submit the necessary papers and admission forms in order to enter the university this summer.

This may be done right up to the day of registration, Evans said, but he emphasized it is best for all concerned if students new to the university begin their preparations for entrance earlier.

Evans also noted that former Southeast Missouri State students who were not enrolled during the spring semester must complete new admission forms.

In general, classes during one of the university's short sessions will meet twice as many hours a week as do those which stretch out for the full term. For example, a three- semester- hour course for the full term will meet five hours a week. The same three- hour- course duringa short session would meet 10 hours a week.

All classes are scheduled in air- conditioned buildings except for a few which require the use of special equipment or facilities in quarters which are not air-conditioned. In addition, students living on campus are housed in air- conditioned residence halls.

Besides the full schedule of both graduate and undergraduate classes to be offered this summer at the university, the term is dotted with special workshops in various disciplines.

Disciplines in which workshops have been scheduled are art, business education, earth science, library science, education, physics, English, law enforcement, physical education, social studies and speech. The workshops consist of intensified study, usually over a one or two-week period.

One workshop, Cataloging of Non- Print Materials, began Monday and ended Thursday. Others set to get under way during the next two weeks are Primitive Pottery, June 13-15 and 18-19; Problems in Business Education: Business Machines, June 18- June 29; Rocks and Minerals, June 11-15; Landforms, June 18-22; Organization of Non-Book Material, June 11-15; Problems in Education: Physical Science Science for Elementary Teachers, June 11- July 12; School Public Relations, June 18-22; Approaches to Teaching Writing, June 18-29; and Introduction to Forensic Drug Analysis, June 18-20.

A list of other workshops and their dates scheduled during the summer months may be obtained by writing Dr. A. R. Meyer, dean of instruction and director of the summer session at Southeast Missouri State.

A number of special lectures have been arranged for the summer term to complement the formal classroom instruction which the students receive.

The first will be delivered on June 19 by Dr. R. L. Johns, a professor at the University of Florida and director of the National Educational Finance Project.

He will be followed by Dr. Charles D'Augustine, a professor at Ohio University, on June 27; Dr. James Mecklenburger, director of research for the National School Board Association, on July 2; and Dr. Frank B. Womer, a professor at the University of Michigan, on July 20.

Additionally, Mrs. Warren E. Hearnes, wife of Missouri's former governor, will present a series of lectures July 16-20. She will discuss "Missouri's Executive Mansion", "Life in the Executive Mansion", "Women in Missouri", "Women in Missouri Politics", and "The Heritage of Missouri."

As in past years, the university has scheduled a weekly free film series for the entertainment of summer school students. The first film will be June 21 and others will be shown each Thursday evening through Aug. 2.

The university's Olympic-size swimming pool will also be open free to summer students daily (except Fridays), beginning Tuesday. Monday through Thursday hours will be 7-9 p.m. while Saturday and Sunday hours will be 2-5 p.m. Friday evenings from 7 to 9 have been reserved for faculty members and their immediate families.

Ann Landers

Overweight wife may mean divorce

Dear Ann Landers: Last Valentine's Day I came very close to asking my wife for a divorce. Why? Because she has been grossly overweight for the past eight years and I am sick of it. She goes for every diet that comes along, takes pills and insists she is "trying." She is "trying" all right--- everything and anything but cutting down on her eating. She has something in her mouth all day long.

We are both in our middle 30s, although she looks older. I still have all may hair and can get into my wedding trousers, in case you are wondering. Although I'm no Burt Reynolds I keep getting "come-hither" looks from some very cute chicks in the office. To my wife's credit, we have good kids and she's a better-than-average cook. The house looks O.K. and I have no other complaints except her weight.

A woman who would rather give in to her taste-buds than please her husband lets the world know he is not very important to her. This hurts. Do I have a right or not? --- Leaving It Up To You

I am not not making excuses for your wife, but plenty of husbands love their fat wives and plenty more cheat on thin ones, so don't delude yourself.

I hope, for her sake, that your wife will get some counseling and find out why she has to have something in her mouth all day long. It could be the beginning of a better life for both of you.

Dear Ann Landers: Recently someone asked what to do about a former neighbor who drinks, calls her on the phone, and talks and talks and talks. Well, I think I'm the neighbor who drinks, so please hear me out.

I know I make a pest of myself but sometimes I get so lonesome I can't stand it. But I do have my pride --- drunk or sober.

Your suggestion that "Former Neighbor" get an unlisted number is not practical. Celebrities may find it convenient to be incommunicado, but the average person wants to be reached. How much better to tell the drunk (when she is sober) exactly how you feel about the calls. I can almost guarantee that the embarrassment will be so great that even if she is thoroughly sloshed she will remember and there will be no more calls. Sign me -- Been There And Trying To Get Back

Dear B.T. And Trying: Not all drunks behave the same way. Some become totally uninhibited --- couldn't care less if they bother people. Others don't remember anything, and so on. But I'm sure your suggestion would work on some. (P.S. Hang in there, honey. Others have made it back and you can, too.)

Dear Ann Landers: You have stated repeatedly that you are against the legalization of marijuana. Why?

Alcohol is more damaging than pot --- and it's legal. This is ridiculous. Please clarify. --- Lincoln, Neb.

Dear Linc: (1). No one knows for sure how damaging pot is over the long haul. But it appears from the studies now emerging that pot is a lot more destructive than was originally thought. Many authorities are reversing their positions. (2). Booze is here to stay. Prohibition was a failure. We now have 9,000,000 alcoholics in the U.S. and I would not care to add another 6,000,000 pot heads who are spaced out on grass.

Drugs. How much is too much? Is pot O.K.? Is L.S.D. too much? If you're on dope or considering it, get Ann Landers new booklet, "Straight Dope on Drugs." For each booklet ordered send a dollar bill plus a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope (16c postage) to Ann Landers, Box 3346, Chicago, Illinois 60654.

Child specialist tells plant dangers

By KATHERINE K. HILL
Area Child and Family Development Specialist

Summer and outdoor play go together. Danger lurks in the leaves and berries of some shrubs that may be growing in yards, gardens or parks. Small children naturally poke things in their mouths, even grown- ups are sometimes twig- chewers.

If your child eats a poisonous plant, get it to vomit and rush to the doctor or the emergency room of the nearest hospital. But how do you recognize a poisonous plant? If you don't recognize them, organize a shrub and plant identification study for your family.

Oleander— leaves, branches— extremely poisonous. Affects the heart, produces severe digestive upset and can cause death.

Iris— underground stems— severe, but not usually serious, digestive upset.

Bleeding heart (Duchman's britches)— foliage, roots— may be poisonous in large amounts. Has proved fatal to cattle.

Buttercups— all parts— irritant juices may severely injure the digestive system.

Wild and cultivated cherries— twigs, foliage— fatal. Contains a compound that releases cyanide when eaten. Gasping, excitement and prostration are common symptoms that appear within minutes.

BIRTHS

TOOMBS — Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Toombs of Parma are parents of their first child, a son born at 8:51 a.m. Wednesday at Southeast Missouri Hospital in Cape Girardeau. He weighed six pounds five and one-half ounces and has been named Michael Wayne.

Mrs. Toombs is the former Lynda Yvonne Young, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jessie Young of Parma. Toombs, a ginner, is the son of Mrs. Thelma Toombs of Parma.

NEWTON — Mr. and Mrs. Billy Newton, 310 Moore, are parents of their first child, a daughter, born May 26 at 10:25 p.m. in Missouri Delta Community Hospital. The child weighed eight pounds seven ounces and has been named Claudette Michelle.

Mrs. Newton is the former Delores Blackburn, daughter of M. G. Blackburn, 116 School, and the late Evelyn Blackburn. Newton is the son of Mrs. Leona Newton, 837 Greer, and the late Joe Newton. He owns and operates Newton's Upholstery. Mrs. Newton is employed by Missouri Delta Community Hospital.

Deadline set for contest

KANSAS CITY — The final deadline for sending in applications to become a contestant in the Miss Missouri Teen-Ager Pageant is June 20. The pageant is open to all girls between the ages of 13 and 17 and will be held July 27-28 at Muehlebach Hotel in Kansas City.

Judging is based on scholastic achievements, civic contributions, poise, personality and appearance with no talent or swimsuit competition. The lucky young lady who is crowned Miss Missouri Teen-Ager will receive a scholarship to Massey Junior College and will be flown to Atlanta, Ga. for six days, all expenses paid to compete in the national finals.

The first runner-up will receive a $500 scholarship and the second runnerup a $250 scholarship, both to Massey. In addition, each girl will submit a 100-word essay on the pageant theme, "What's Right About America", and the essays will be judged by a separate panel of judges, and special trophies will be awarded to the top three winners.

The National Teen-Ager Pageant is the only one to hold a bondafide pageant in every state and the District of Columbia with one girl chosen to represent her respective state in the national finals. Educational, political and civic leaders all over the country cite this pageant for its recognition of today's youth.

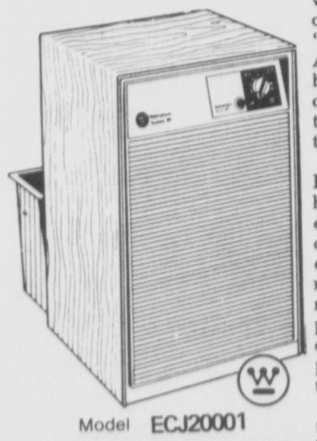

For an application, write to the Miss Missouri Teen-Ager Pageant, 126 Bunn Drive, Rockton, Ill., 61072.

Trinity VBS plans span whole summer

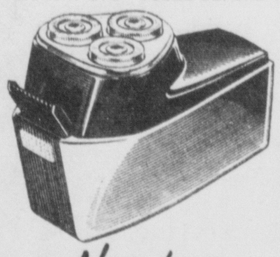

Members of Trinity Baptist Church, Highway 61 North, will engage in a week of Bible school, coupled with four "special satellite sessions" which will span the whole summer. Over 40 hours of special Bible study will be offered for those of all ages 3 and above.

The special week is July 16-20, with opportunities for children, ages 3-11, in the mornings and youth and adults in the evening.

The four "satellite sessions" are to be held on Mondays, June 11, June 25, July 30 and Aug. 6, from 9 to 11 a.m. for children 3-11 years old.

In making this announcement, George W. Cummins Jr., Trinity's pastor, stated, "There is a need, which grows from year to year, to expose both children and adults to concentrated efforts of Bible study. This Vacation Bible School effort, spanning as it does the whole summer is a continuing attempt to broaden Trinity's Bible teaching ministry and deepen biblical insight and truth for those participating."

Marchers hike for missions

Smiles were still brightening the faces of hikers for the United Pentecostal Church as they approached the two- mile point in their 20- mile march Saturday. From left, the young hikers are: Janet Griggs, Rhonda Adams, Cindy Adams and Donna Adams, all of Sikeston. The Sikeston church's effort was part of a statewide drive to collect funds for mission projects. Locally, pledges for the march amounted to almost $1,000. About 25 marchers, led by the Rev. Billie Butler, pastor, participated. Throughout the state, over $150,000 was collected.

THE BIBLE

86. Rahab and the Spies

Joshua dispatched two spies to search out the country around Jericho. When the king of Jericho learned that these men had taken lodgings in the house of Rahab, the prostitute, he sent messengers to persuade her to give up the spies from Israel. Rahab convinced the king's messengers that the men had departed the city about dusk.

Rahab, however, "had brought them up to the roof of the house, and hid them with the stalks of flax." (Joshua 2:6)

When she came to them upon the roof, she said: "I know that the Lord hath given you the land, and that your terror is fallen upon us, and that all of the inhabitants of the land faint because of you." (Joshua 2:9) She then asked Joshua's men to spare her life and the lives of her immediate family as repayment for her kindness. The men agreed to this covenant provided Rahab did not speak of the episode and brought her family inside her house during the siege of Jericho.

After hiding for three days, the spies returned to the camp and reported all they had seen to Joshua.

MAN'S FLIGHT FROM GOD

DAVID POLING, D.D.

Women in Church Leadership Posts

By REV. DAVID POLING

A national survey of among members of the United Church of Christ reveals that many churchgoers are prepared to put women into important parish posts. This supports the trend in other denominations that see an increase in the number of ordained women pastors and the increasing number of women in seminary.

William J. McKinney, a doctoral candidate at Pennsylvania State University has announced the findings of a survey of 700 members of the United Church of Christ. The majority of those replying to the questionnaire (76 per cent) were women and they noted a preference for men as their ministers. Yet many indicated a high degree of acceptance of women in the pulpit. Persons under 30 and with higher educational background were most positive about women in pastoral leadership. Those over 60, from big city and suburb, preferred males in this role.

The reasons given for choosing men over women as senior pastors were as follows: tradition; men had greater ability to command respect in the community; ability to dedicate more time to their profession; more competence in pastoral counseling.

McKinney reports in "AD", the national journal of the United Church of Christ and the United Presbyterian Church, U.S.A.: "Three quarters of the respondents indicated that they would be pleased with whatever career decision their son and daughter might make."

This does not mean that women will soon be in pastoral leadership in every church and every town. But the trend is on with interesting variation:

Scripture: Exodus 20:3-6; Matthew 6:24-34; James 4:7-8

GOD IS SUPREME

The true Christian recognizes the supremacy of God and the integrity of Scripture. Yet when we are told that we should hold no other gods before us we tend to weaken.

Guideposts Magazine prepared a set of guidelines for citizens to use in determining their political choices. The editors considered the statement from Exodus to rate No. 1.

Other key words recommended for consideration included responsibility, truthfulness, integrity, conciliation, patience, purity, and courage.

Such advice need not be limited to politicians. These terms apply equally to our review of today's lesson.

Man was created to find his fulfillment in his complete devotion of God. His first move is to recognize the supremacy element. In doing this man must place the lesser gods in proper prespective.

What are these other gods that demand our devotion? They include the state, our physical comfort, possession of power, money and popularity.

Man must make major decisions each day as to which god he will emphasize. All such decisions must be made in light of God's sovereignty over man's being.

Despite the warning that we "shall not bow down" to any graven image, we often fail to follow God's law. Possibly the Scripture is warning us to avoid any attempt to control God by magical means.

God is a jealous one. If we claim Him as our own we must give Him our exclusive worship. Even the New Testament stresses this concept in saying "No one can serve two masters."

In recognizing God we view Him as our Creator. We read how He used His people, the Israelites, to demonstrate His power and authority. Man-made idols could never save God's people from slavery.

God prohibits the making of any physical object atempting to represent Him. Why should a person be tempted to worship some substitute item? In God's world there can be no No. 2.

Christ put these concepts in more everyday words when He reminded His followers about attempting to serve two masters.

"Serving" God is a twenty-four-hours a day obligation. A businessman must be Christian-like seven days a week, not merely on Sundays. A teenager must not give up his recognition of God to "worship" some campus leader.

Jesus offers us four reasons why we should not be too anxious about everyday activities.

(1) Life is more than eating, drinking, and wearing clothes. These items are needed, yet the real meaning of life is more than material possessions.

(2) We have ample evidence that God will take care of us, as He does for the birds and flowers. And certainly we rank higher than the birds and flowers.

(3) And as Jesus said, worry can't solve any problem. Worry never provides our needs; anxiety never cures our problems.

(4) God is aware of our needs and if we believe He will provide the proper solutions.

The entire concern is certainly one of emphasis and priority. Most persons have the knack of determining their priorities in other affairs, such as what to do first in their jobs. Or where to go first on a vacation trip.

There are many rivals to God in our daily lives. Jesus tells us about His temptations and we learn how He withstood them. He recognizes that such resistance requires supreme effort.

Christians are different from other people. But they are different only when they recognize that God is their supreme and their only leader. Such devotion to one master is difficult but Jesus assures us it is well worth the effort.

Trinity plans family picnic

Members and friends of Trinity Baptist Church will share in the annual family picnic Sunday. Activities will begin with Bible study and morning worship and continue through the noon meal, which will be served at 12:30 p.m., and an afternoon of fellowship and recreational activities for young and old.

Church News

Methodists list pastor stations

FAYETTE — The United Methodist Church's annual session of the Missouri East Conference May 31- June 3 on the campus of Central Methodist College created a new approach to providing pensions for its ministers, approved a weekly newspaper and adopted a budget of $1,876,977.

Meeting for the first time under the leadership of Bishop Robert E. Goodrich Jr., elected and assigned to Missouri last July, the conference also gave a majority vote to six of the eight constitutional amendments which had been transmitted to the East Conference by the General Conference of the denomination in April 1972.

The amendments pertained to elimination of male designations in the Constitution, more privileges to laity and technical matters.

The pension program allows all ministers to participate in a general church program whereas the ministers' own contributions and payments by churches are invested by the denomination's Board of Pensions. At age 65 these monies, plus accrued dividends are available to the clergyman.

The newspaper will replace a monthly publication and go to ministers and selected church officials throughout Missouri. It is edited in St. Louis.

Among ministerial appointments for the coming year announced Sunday by Bishop Goodrich were:

Poplar Bluff-Sikeston District

Bell City, Stephen Million; Bernie, David Rice; Bertrand, Robert Burke; Bloomfield- West Pleasant Valley, John Walker; Bridges-Marston, Michael Smith.

30-mile walk slated

A walkathon will be held Saturday, beginning at 7 a.m., at First Assembly of God Church, 306 S. Kingshighway. The theme of the walkathon is "We Walk So Missionaries Can Ride", and all proceeds will go to Speed the Light, an Assembly of God national youth organization, to purchase vehicles for the church's missionaries.

Approximately 45 people, including the pastor, the Rev. T. A. McDonough, will begin the 30- mile hike which is to end in Cape Girardeau.

Fifty families in the area and several businesses and businessmen from Sikeston, Oran, Essex, Bertrand, Benton, Cape Girardeau and Hunterville, will sponsor the walkers and have agreed to contribute a set amount for each mile walked.

The person who brings in the most money from the walkathon will be awarded honors by the national Assembly of God news publications and by Sikeston First Assembly's newsletter.

Morehouse-- Bryce Edwards entertained the members of the vocational agriculture class of the Morehouse High School and their guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. F.B. Rauch, on the night of May 19.

Dr. J.A. Milem passed away at his home on Park avenue on the sixth following an illness of chronic throat trouble for the past several months. He had been confined to his home for the past two month's.

Miss Virginia Matthews returned home last week from Washington, D.C., where she has been attending school.

Mr. and Mrs. F.D. Randall, who have made Sikeston their home since last September, left last Saturday for their home in Kansas City.

A Sikeston dance sextet which first won popular acclaim in a Lions Night Cub appearance and since that time in a half dozen appearances, will entertain before a Kennett audience Friday it was stated here today. The chorus girls coached by Miss Bradley of Poplar Bluff include Mary Emma Powell, Neva Mae Taylor, Mae Pepper, Genevieve Putnam, Marjorie Mow and Hazel Young. Miss Powell will do a solo dance tap speciality and Miss Virginia Baker will offer her version of several popular song numbers.

C.C. Sergeant, for the past two years associated with the Poplar Bluff High School bands and instrumental in building those organizations to their present state of perfection, visited Sikeston Tuesday and talked with civic leaders regarding the formation of such an organization here.

The weather moderated considerably Thursday, dropping nearly four degrees below the extreme point of 102 reached Wednesday for a new high June record.

The huge cooling plant recently installed by Sellards' Meat Market, Frisco, was placed in operation this week. A four- ton Frick cooling machine will readily cool 36,000 square feet of box square, which is more than adequate under present conditions.

Charleston-- Funeral services for Chambliss Keith Taylor, 29, were held today. A resident of Mississippi County for 10 years, he died Saturday at the home, Route 1, Bertrand.

Mr. and Mrs. R.M. Shirley entertained Saturday at their home with a party for 16 friends of their son, Bob, who celebrated his 10th birthday.

Babies born at the Delta Community Hospital on June 6 include a son to Mr. and Mrs. I.W. Miller of Dudley; Mr. and Mrs. William Cole, jr., Sikeston, a baby girl; and babies born yesterday include a baby girl to Mr. and Mrs. Fred Tope, jr., and a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. Charles O. Dahlberg both of Sikeston.

Ken Lanning of Rolla, shooting a sizzling 13 under par 95 for the 27 holes, won the fourth annual Missouri Delta Open Golf Tournament championship class here yesterday for the second consecutive year, thus adding another leg to the coveted Buckner- Ragsdale traveling trophy.

What's the law?

By Jack Strauss, LL.B.

O'Reilly lived spryly with a lick of the heels and a sparkle in his eyes. And when the song on his lips finally stopped and he was lowered into his grave, there wasn't a dry eye or a full bottle to be found anywhere in the cemetery.

The somber consensus was that the last had been seen of the wryly O'Reilly. But then his widow insisted he had died as a consequence of his employment and, resisting her claim for a Workman's Compensation award, O'Reilly's erstwhile employer insisted that he be dug up again.

"If she's going to try to hold me responsible for his death," insisted the employer in court, "I've got a right to know why O'Reilly kicked the bucket. I want him examined thoroughly."

"Not for a barrel of four- leaf clovers," retorted the irate widow. "When a man dies, he's entitled to rest in peace and quiet. Besides, I'm not a strong woman. If I had to go through another wake when we buried O'Reilly again it would surely kill me."

IF YOU WERE THE JUDGE, would you order O'Reilly's resurrection so that his employer could have him examined?

This is how the judge ruled: NO! The judge held that an employer may not unbury an employe's body for the purpose of defending a Workman's Compensation claim. The law will not reach into the grave, concluded the judge, in search of the facts except in the rarest of cases and circumstances.

BENTON — Charles R. Smith, of Memphis, Tenn., director of the Emergency Operative Planner Program for the federal government, met with the Scott County Court Thursday to discuss flood damage in Scott County.

Smith said none of the projects has been approved by the federal government in connection with damage to ditches, roads and bridges.

Presiding Judge Les Lankford said he doesn't think Scott County will receive as much money from the federal government as the court requested, but thinks maybe they will receive some.

Lankford said a letter is being mailed by the court to Hugh Sprauge of Jefferson City, administrative assistant to Gov. Christopher Bond, giving him estimated damages to public property in Scott County. Lankford said this does not include private damages. "This is just an estimate," said Lankford. "Later we will send a detailed statement."

The court's estimate is $195,000. This includes: Approaches to bridges, $75,00; damages to existing bridges, $50,000; replacing rock that has been washed off the road, $60,000; and culberts, $10,000.

Thomas R. Gilmore and Juvenile officer Fred Glover appeared before the court to discuss Gilmore's recent appointment by Circuit Court Judge Marshall Craig to serve as legal advisor to the Juvenile Court.

Owens related the incident at Big Oak State Park as told to him by Zook and quoted Zook as saying, he had planned "to beat hell out of them." Zook reportedly said Denny never would have hit him with the boat paddle if he hadn't been drinking and his balance was off. Owens said Zook showed him his finger which appeared to be swollen and said Johnston had hit him on the hand with the boat paddle. He also claimed that Bryant Johnston tried to run over him with the car. According to Owens, Zook was very angry and had a shotgun between his legs, with the barrel out the window while at his station. "I told Dewey to go home and think about this overnight and he told me he was going to make one more run by their house and 'If they're there, I'm going to kill both of the s.o.b.s,'" Owens said.

East Prairie City policeman Jim McAfee testified that when he and Sgt. Lyle Scott arrived at the scene, Zook was lying on Maple Street face down about 11 feet from the intersection of South Martin Street. A shotgun was lying across his knees and, according to McAfee, it appeared that his left arm and left leg had been run over by a car. "Dennis Johnston told us he had shot him and gave us the gun," McAfee said.

The other witnesses called did not see the shooting and could only testify to events which followed the shooting.

Members of the Zook family became outraged when, as they put it, their side of the story was not brought out. Several members of the family berated the law enforcement officers of Mississippi County.

duty as night dispatcher and was outside the police station. He said he saw Preslar and heard him using bad language as he walked across the street toward Moore. Johnson said he was about 10 feet away from the men and heard Preslar say several times to Moore that he was "going to beat the hell out of him."

Johnson said he watched Preslar as he approached Moore and "he didn't look just right." He continued, "Joe tried to talk to Bill. I heard Joe say, "Bill, you are sick, let me take you to the doctor, and Bill said 'you ain't no doctor.'"

Johnson said when he saw Moore almost go down and Preslar was still going after Moore, he started toward the men to assist Moore. He heard the shot and saw Preslar fall toward Moore.

Crumley said he was inside the police station looking out a large front window and that he saw Preslar coming across the street toward the police station. However, he could not hear anything that was said between Preslar and Moore. He saw Preslar hit Moore and heard the gun fired.

Crumley testified he knew of no trouble between Preslar and Moore, nor did he know any reason why Preslar would hit Moore, or that Moore had any other reason to shoot Preslar except for the attack.

Preslar was viewed by the jury at Richards Funeral Home prior to hearing the testimony. The verdict was reached within 10 minutes of deliberation.

Advance to purchase pickup

Advance — The City Council voted Tuesday to purchase a new pickup truck from Morley Implement Co. The new truck is to be used by the water and street department and will be purchased with revenue sharing funds.

Douglas Rowe of Advance met with the Council to discuss plans for a new tennis court. The proposal was tabled.

A proposed landfill was discussed and it was decided to discuss it further at the next regular meeting.

The council gave permission to Ruth Millington of the park board to proceed with plans for beautification of the city park.

'Leaving the competition behind'

Joan Weston, popular Midwest Pioneer distaff captain, exhibits the classic form of Roller Derby's "Golden Girl" in leaving the competition behind. The Pioneers, who draw crowds in St. Louis, Kansas City and Springfield, make their first Sikeston appearance in the high school fieldhouse at 7 p.m. June 26 against the rugged Red Devils.

Derby comes to Sikeston

The Pioneer and Red Devil Roller Derby teams will appear at the Sikeston High School Fieldhouse at 8 p.m. June 26 for a one- night performance.

Proceeds for the performance will be used by the Sikeston volunteer fire department to purchase additional equipment for the rescue unit.

Tickets may be purchased from members of the volunteer fire department or at the door the night of the performance. All seats will be general admission.

Inflation is no. 1 national problem

WASHINGTON (AP) — The White House Thursday ruled out any major policy announcements on the economy during the weekend, but said, "the President will be taking actions as they are required."

Deputy press secretary Gerald L. Warren told reporters that President Nixon discussed the economy with his Cabinet during the morning but no decisions had been made on whether to strengthen the battle against rising prices.

Nixon invited suggestions from Cabinet officers on how to deal with the problem of inflation, Warren said.

He called "obviously unwelcome" the report by the Labor Department that wholesale prices surged again in May, presaing future price increases as the consumer level.

Jamestown parents still wait for news of son

JAMESTOWN, Mo. (AP) — News reports are watched carefully by Mr. and Mrs. Carl Richardson of Jamestown, Mo., for any news about the more than 2,000 men still listed as missing in action in the Vietnam War.

One of the missing is their son who was shot down over Cambodia in May, 1970.

"We don't think there's much chance he'll be found alive, Richardson says. "Of course, we're still holding out that hope."

Richardson's main concern is that the missing men, his son included, seem to be slipping from the minds of American people, now that the war is over and the prisoners of war have returned. He is afraid people will lose interest and fail to pursue information about the MIAs, which was the case after the Korean War when several hundred MIAs were never accounted for.

"How extensive the search is by the international teams will be our personal cogncern," he said.

Richardson has a map with an "X" marking the spot where his son's helicopter was shot down. "The site is easy to find and they say the helicopter may still be there. If the fighting ever stops there (in Cambodia) the international team will be able to go in and find out something," he said.

The Richardsons have learned from other men in the helicopter who have returned that their son was last seen defending himself with his automatic pistol. Because of this, they are inclined to believe their son was killed.

Richardson, a school superintendent at nearby Prairie Home, Mo., was state co-ordinator for the Missouri League of Families for Prisoners of War and Missing in Action.

When the war ended and the prisoners came home, the metal bracelets that many people wore with prisoners' names engraved on them were removed. Richardson feels it is becoming too late to stir up much public interest in the missing men.

"Pressure from the public on Hanoi, and pressure from the United States government are the only things that can bring a full accounting from the Communists," he says. The ceasefire accord reached in Paris provided for such an accounting of the missing men by Hanoi, but Richardson, along with many other Americans, does not believe the list released a few months ago was near complete.

"Our son had opposition to the war, but he went anyway and served, and now he is lost in Cambodia. Draft-dodging is a preconceived violation of the law and it cannot be absolved by granting amnesty," he said.

"It's like refusing to obey any other law in our country. If you break the law, you must pay the price for your mistake. This is the method set up by our Constitution and is the law of the land."

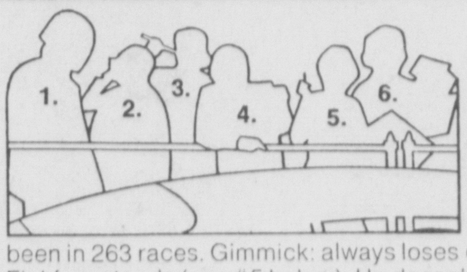

On the other hand, Richardson has some sympathy for deserters who broke and ran in battle. "I am more favorably inclined to help this person. Although each case is an individual one, there may be a good reason for his decision. At least his action is not as pre -conceived as the draft dodger's."

And as an afterthought, Richardson added: "After all, our son went to Vietnam. He may have been filling in for someone who is crying in Stockholm right now."

Here at the Speedway everybody has a gimmick . . . almost everybody. Try picking the one who doesn't go along. 1. Nope. He's "Third Turn" Abanian. Has been in 263 races. Gimmick: always loses control on third turn where Bubbles Fickfern stands (see #5 below). He doesn't smoke. His car does. 2. No. Second-Hand Sam Slick, used car dealer. Gimmick: buys what's left of Abanian's cars. Smokes "preowned" cigars. 3. Hardly. He's Reggie J. Van Phynque II. Gimmick: filthy rich. Wears cashmere toupee. Smokes double-vented cigarette. 4. Right. He likes his racing without far-out fads or gimmicks. Wants his cigarette that way, too. Camel Filters. Honest, no-nonsense. Fine tobacco. Easy and good tasting. 5. Bubbles Fickfern, racing groupie. Gimmick: 18 stopwatches . . . with Mickey Mouse hands. Smokes Fellinis. 6. Fellini. Gimmick: never sees a race; too busy following other sports events on portable TV and radio.

Camel Filters. They're not for everybody (but they could be for you).

First catch of the season

Thursday proved to be a good fishing day for four- year - old Gary Decker of Sikeston. Gary, son of Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Decker, was fishing with his father in St. John Creek when he caught his first fish of the season, a nice carp.

Missouri fishing

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — The Missouri Conservation Department says waters should continue to be clear and good this weekend, if no more rain occurs.

Temperatures in the state's streams and rivers are running about 70 degrees and channel cat, crappie, blue gill, and goggle-eye are running fair to good but bass are only fair.

Individual stream conditions:

Mississippi—Flood stage.

Salt—Half bank full, muddy.

Big River—Dingy and flush, poor.

Jr. wins prevail

Jr. Babe Ruth action saw Davis & Byrd down Home Materials 6- 3 and the Eagles hand Harts a 13- 6 defeat Thursday night.

The first three innings remained scoreless as both teams failed to bring anybody around. Davis & Byrd was first on the board when they broke through for three runs in the fourth. They gained an additional run before Home Materials made a score. Playing steady, ball, D&B picked up two more runs and while holding Home Materials came away with the win.. Greer pitched the win. Dockins, the losing pitcher, had the only extra base hit of the game with a double.

Harts could not move against the pitching of the Eagles' Cloud and has to suffer the loss. Starting the game with two runs, Harts looked to have an early advantage, but matters seemed dimmer as the Eagles picked up the pace and scored on Harts. Gaining the lead during the second, they managed to hold on to it. Hart threatened in the fourth, moving to within one of the lead but the Eagles still had the power at the plate and continued a winning score. Stokes pitched the loss.

Donkies star

BLOOMFIELD — Two donkey softball games are scheduled to be played at the Bloomfield High School Athletic Field on Friday night, June 8, at 8:00 p.m.

The games are sponsored by the Bloomfield Summer Baseball Association. The proceeds will go for the benefit of the local Little League, Babe Ruth and Connie Mack teams. The specific purpose is to purchase needed equipment.

In the second game, Con Metz and his Pony League boys will ride against Jerry Holland and the Connie Mack boys.

Tickets, if purchased in advance, will be $1.00 for adults and grades 7-12 and $.75 for students in grades K-6. At the gate, the prices will be $1.25 for adults and grades 7-12 and $1.00 for elementary students.

In case of rain, the games will be re- scheduled at a later date.

Fast play

Roppert pitched a 4- 0 shutout over Bank of Sikeston for Eby's Distribution and the National Guard downed Budweiser 11-5 in Thursday night's Sikeston Fast Pitch League.

Lambert had to take the loss for Bank of Sikeston as his team failed to supply the hitting power against the tough Roppert.

Cards stopped

ST. LOUIS (AP)— "I kind of knew what he was going to throw me," said Ivan Murrell, a San Diego Padres sub. "He's a low ball, sinker pitcher; I'm a low ball hitter."

The hunch of the 28-year- old Padres utility man paid off Thursday night as San Diego rallied to nip the surging St. Louis Cardinals 4-3.

But apparently even more certain of Murrell's ninth-inning heroics, a lead- off homer against reliever Wane Granger, was Nick Colosi, the game's first base umpire.

"Believe it or not when they brought Granger in the first base umpire looked at me and ssid, 'you're about due for a home run' " said Murrell, who was playing first base in place of ailing Nate Colbert.

"Granger had retired about six in a row at the time, and I told him I had pretty good luck against this guy," Murrell added.

"He said, 'well, you're about due for a home run.' I said, 'No, I'm not looking for a home run.' "

His bouncing single up the middle struck teammate Dave Roberts, however, and canceled a budding San Diego Rally in the second.

In the sixth, as the Padres rallied to tie, a sharp double scored Fred Kendall to make it 3- 2 and brought on Granger in place of Cards starter Reggie Cleveland.

Granger, 1- 2, was victimized by a bouncing Rich Morales single that produced the tie, then retired at actual count seven in a row before facing Murrell.

Losses taken

In National Little League play Thursday night, A & B scored a 5-3 win over Kiwanis and Pizza Inn hit Lewis off the field with a 16-6 win.

A & B, behind consistent pitching and fielding, held off the Kiwanis in a tight match. The early edge went to A & B which they kept in their grasp throughout the game. Kiwanis came around to give A & B a little trouble, but could not rally and had to take the loss. Brashear was on the mound for A & B. Lee hit a double for A & B.

It was a hitter's field day durg the second game. Pizza blasted Lewis in all departments. Lewis picked up the lead and Pizza Inn had to struggle to make a comeback. Finally coming around in the third, Pizza Inn got their bats swinging and brought six runs across. But it was not over yet. Lewis battled back and came within one run of Pizza Inn, but Pizza continued their hot hitting and knocked nine big runs in and the game was all Pizza Inn's. Northcut, Beadean and Laseter hit doubles, Walls had a triple and Deal hit a double and a home run. All were Pizza Inn's extra base hits.

Close wins

Musial Little League action was tight Thursday night as Kingsway and Harts squeaked by for wins. Kingsway turned back Rank of Sikeston 12-10 while Potlatch dropped a 18-16 game to Harts.

The game was evenly matched as both teams struggled to gain a hold on the lead. Kingsway picked up the edge, but was continually being threatened by Bank of Sikeston. Kingsway managed to keep a step ahead of the Bank and was able to come away with the win. Perry, for Bank of Sikeston, had two doubles. Williams helped lead Kingsway to the win with a double and homer.

The lead see- sawed back and forth between the two teams. Tied in the first, Harts shook loose and went ahead by two, but could not hold on for long as Potlatch came back and tied the game once again. Despite Harts efforts, Potlatch forged ahead to capture the lead. The final inning produced the results as Harts came on strong and held Potlatch to take the win. Potlatch's only extra base hit of the game was a double from Bell. Scott, the winning pitcher, had a double to this credit along with Dockins, Fraser and Cox. Hurley proved to be the star of the game, being four for four at bat. He had three doubles and one triple for his efforts. branson had the loss.

Tourney opener

The Vanduser Invitational Softball Tourney opened Thursday night with a bang as homeruns flourished. Vanduser defeated the Cape Jets 5-1 and Sikeston fell to Kelso 6-5.

Mays had a two runs homer for Vanduser early in the game which carried them to the win. Holding on to that edge and picking up three aditional runs, Vanduser proved to be a little too tough for the Jets. Gilland was on the mound for Vanduser.

Sikeston played strong ball during the first four innings, taking a 5-0 edge. Dale Sexton hit a two run homer which started the action. Another homerun added to it, gave Sikeston the lead, but it was not long until Kelso got into the action. Schwartz hit a three run homer in the bottom of the fourth to start the attack on Sikeston. Another round tripper brought Kelso to within one and then to the win. Relief pitcher Tommy Russell had the win and Bob Glare suffered the loss.

Weekend golfing

If the good weather that this area has enjoyed for the last couple of days holds out, golf enthusiasts have a big weekend to look forward to.

The links will be crowded around this area with no less than four tournaments scheduled throughout the state and Arkansas and Kentucky.

The Cape Public Course Open tournament will be played at Cape Girardeau Saturday and Sunday. It will be a 36 hole affair.

A 36 hole Mixed Pairs tournament will be held at RollingHills Country Club in Paducah, Ky. Saturday and Sunday.

Sherwood Country Club in St. Louis will hold a 36 hole mixed pair scramble Saturday and Sunday.

Oak Meadow Country Club in Rolla will host a 36 hole 4-ball tournament on Saturday and Sunday.

The St. Andrews GC Open will be held in St. Charles, Mo. Saturday and Sunday.

MOBILE HOMES & TRAILERS

With our new campers you'll never have to bend over a hot stove again.

In our new Starcraft campers, you may still have to cook, but at least you don't have to stoop to use the range. All the kitchens are built to be used at a back-saving working height, nearly 7" above most others. There's even one model with a kitchen console that swings out to let you cook outdoors if you want. That's Starcraftsmanship.

Today in U.S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today's highlight in history: On this date in the year 632, the prophet Mohammed died.

On this date:

In 1861, Tennessee seceded from the Union.

In 1953, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled that restaurants in the District of Columbia could not refuse to serve Negroes.

In 1965, U.S. troops in Vietnam were authorized to engage in offensive operations.

Learning crafts

Daycamp gives insight into Scouting

With a theme of Look to the Rainbow, 144 Girl Scouts and 26 adults are earning badges and learning new craft skills at Girl Scout Day Camp this week at the Bill Lewis farm, 16 miles west of Sikeston at Avert.

Day camp for the Sikeston, Matthews and Morehouse neighborhoods started Monday and ends today. Scouts have been working on baskets and weaving, making belts, hiking, learning and teaching games, making terraniums and gathering wildflowers. They also held a turtle race Thursday.

The girls have chosen names for their groups, which include colors in the rainbow. Unit names range from Bluejays, to Yellow Submarines, Jolly Green Giants, Purple Pickles, Rambling Blues, Orange Brigade, Pink Panthers, Aqua Meadow, Rambling Roses, and Pixies.

Each day a bag of gold is hidden on the camp ground. The troop that finds the bag, receives a chocolate gold coin treat at the end of the day. An award is also made each day for the unit with the cleanest campsite that day.

The day starts at 9 a.m. with a flag ceremony and ends at 3 p.m. with a closing ceremony. Today was designated as crazy hair day. Awards and badges were given out to the campers.

Five year camper awards were given to Kim Burrows, Tory Robertson, Laurie Deane and Michele Manning of Sikeston and Teresa Hawes of Matthews.

The scouts have had various experiences while at camp which ranged from Monday's bad rainstorm at the end of camp to being chased by cattle while on a hike. Cadette Scouts, spent the night at the campsite Thursday night.

To help all scouts remember their experiences at this year's day camp, the Cadette unit called Jolly Green Giants, put together a small newspaper called The Rainbow Special, which was given to all girls at the end of camp.

The camp site was perfect for the primitive desires of the girls. It is located in a hilly and wooded area, with a stream running right through camp, which the girl's found was excellent for cooling off.

Bond set at $2500 for Lucille Wilson

CHARLESTON — Magistrate T.J. Brown Jr. Thursday appointed an attorney to represent Mrs. Lucille Wilson of rural Charleston on a felony charge of assault with intent to kill.

Bond for Mrs. Wilson, accused of assaulting her common- law husband Andrew Phillips with an ax on June 1, was set at $2,500, and the case was continued.

Dean Williams, Billy Poe and Richard Easley of East Prairie each entered pleas of guilty to two counts of maliciously destroying and injuring personal property. Sentencing for the three was deferred to June 14. The three pleaded guilty to breaking a window in a car owned by Oscar Stein on May 30 and, on the same day, throwing rocks through the windshield and right window of a truck owned by the Mississippi County Drainage Co.

Ruthie B. Butler of Waterloo, W. Va., entered a plea of not guilty to a charge of having improper license and trial was set for June 14. She was released on her own recognizance.

Judge Brown scheduled June 14 as trial date for Edward Holmes, charged with common assault. A similar charge against A.C. Cleaves was dismissed on payment of $12.50 costs. A common assault charge against Boyd Henderson was dismissed and costs were certified to Mississippi County. A similar charge against Phillip Sullivan was continued to June 21.

A charge of violating the compulsory attendance law against Robert and Claudia Waters was dismissed at $15 costs. Also dismissed was a felony charge of tampering with a motor vehicle against Ozine Davis.

Fines and charges in misdemeanor cases included: Archibald Eugene O'Hara of Charleston, improper passing- careless and imprudent driving, $31; Robert Gene Tripp of East Prairie, careless and imprudent driving, $31. and Willie L. Wicker Jr. of Anniston, speeding, $41.

Cases continued to June 14 included: Mary Thompson Marshall of Charleston, driving while intoxicated and speeding; Roy Eugene Patrick of Charleston, driving while intoxicated and driving while operator's license was revoked; Leslie Allen Achter of East Prairie, burglary and stealing; Dwight Eugene- Scruggs of Charleston, excessively loud mufflers; and Jimmie Darrell Hicks of Sikeston, burglary and stealing.

Two counts of running stop signs, a charge of running a red light, speeding and disregarding a red light and siren against Ronnie Watson of Charleston were dismissed.

Bond chooses Rendlen to head state GOP

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — A Hannibal attorney who says he has "worked in the trenches" many years for the GOP, but never sought elected office, is the governor's choice to head the state Republican party.

He is Albert Rendlen Sr., 51, whom Bond recently named a regent at Northeast Missouri State University.

A member of the state GOP committee, he would succeed Richard L. Berkley, Kansas City councilman who said this week he is resigning because of business and personal reasons.

Rendlen agreed to become a candidate for the post, even though it is not fulltime nor is it salaried.

There have been reports of a split in Republican ranks on what direction the party should take, following its takeover last fall of top state offices.

"If there are mild differences in the party, I feel I can work with all the elements," Rendlen said.

Another candidate for the post is Stanley P. Christopher, Kansas City lawyer, who told Bond he wanted the job. The governor, however, gave him no commitment of support.

Christopher was reported to have considerable support among Republicans in the Kansas City area, in the Missouri Senate and on the state committee. Berkley also reportedly support Christopher.

Another person considered by Bond was George Parker, former state representative from Columbia who is state director of business and administration, a position being eliminated in reorganization of state government.

Parker said he would be interested in the job if it was a fulltime paid position.

Berkley was selected chairman after Bond won the primary contest last August. The governor's office said Rendlen had the support at that time to become chairman, but he stepped aside for Berkley.

Some Republicans conseled Bond not to become involved in the selection of a state chairman, lest it further widen differences in the party. But a governor's aide said Bond decide to become involved because he would have to work closely with the chairman.

Behind some of the dissatisfaction is a complaint by some veteran Republicans that they have little influence in the new Republican administration, especially with Bond's younger staff members.

Watch his big smile that says "Thank You"

When the boy comes to collect...

Your newspaperboy makes it his business to collect at a regular time—convenient to you.

That way he comes expected and you can be ready for him.

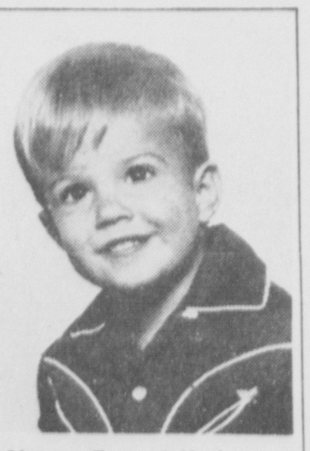

You can help, too, by having the money there so he won't have to come back. He'll appreciate that.

Because this boy is in business. He depends on the full collection of his route for his full profit. And repeat calls for him mean extra work with no extra profit.

Hence, next time the boy comes by to collect, be ready—and watch his big smile, which says "Thank you."
